

Mitchell Maps 4-Point Program To Speed Up Justice In U. S.

ASKS UNIFORM RULES DRAFTED BY HIGH COURT

Favors New Judges and Would Allow Waiver of Grand Jury Indictments

Washington—(P)—So criminals can be imprisoned more quickly after arrest and the innocent set free, Attorney General Mitchell exhorted congress today to enact a four-point program.

At the outset he admitted quite frankly he was restricting recommendations sharply, hoping thereby to have them accepted so justice can be speeded.

He wants: Nine new district judges, with 17 judgeships, now temporary, to be made permanent. Defendants to be allowed to waive the requirement of indictment by a grand jury. Legislation that, if 12 eligible grand jurors vote for an indictment, an indictment can not be invalidated.

HONEST EFFORT IS MADE TO ENFORCE LAW, WOODCOCK SAYS

Washington—(P)—The prohibition bureau is trying to enforce the dry laws "earnestly, and honestly and lawfully."

This was set forth today in the annual report of Prohibition Director Woodcock, summing up the first year of the bureau's activities under the justice department.

"The bureau has sought always to do its task with the minimum of irritation to the innocent public," he said. "It has never hesitated to punish agents who have violated this principle."

"We believe that more effective results can be obtained by the intelligent, well trained and gentlemanly agent than by any other type. The full effect of these policies is just beginning to be realized."

because of the presence of one ineligible person on the grand jury. The supreme court to be authorized to draft uniform rules to be enforced in criminal cases after verdicts in the district courts and the circuit courts of appeal.

Embodied in his annual report also was the news that soon he will specify how the bankruptcy laws might best be amended, being convinced by a study in his department that at present these are failing.

The Mitchell document carried with it reports of his subordinates, G. Aaron Youngquist, assistant attorney general in charge of prohibition, said liquor cases disposed of during the 1931 fiscal year, ending June 30, totaled 61,265, compared with 52,437 for 1930.

Dry Law Arrests Prohibition Director Woodcock calculated that agents under him made 63,177 arrests in the year, and seized 5,499 automobiles, 76 boats, and 21,541 stills.

A total of 51,360 persons were convicted, 30,108 received jail or penitentiary sentences and 26,341 fines were imposed. The average fine was $1154 and the average sentence 224 days.

Attorney General Mitchell advised that the practice and procedure in federal criminal cases after a guilty verdict had been rendered "should be thoroughly overhauled," saying: "The present system permits inexcusable delays and unnecessary expense. There are cases now pending in the federal courts where years have elapsed since the verdicts of guilty without the cases having been finally reached and disposed of in the circuit courts of appeal."

Convictions lose their effect as a deterrent on crime if months and years elapse after verdicts of guilty, during which the convicts remain at large pending appeal."

Referring to his proposal for waiving indictments, Mitchell said where the accused intends to plead guilty, preliminary hearings and grand jury proceedings are needless for his protection and cause unnecessary expense and delay."

"In such cases," he added, "the law should permit the filing of an information and immediate plea and sentence."

His proposals for additional judgeships were recommended by the last conference of senior circuit judges. Mitchell transmitted a copy of the recommendations which his report said would be made permanent in Massachusetts (2), southern district of New York (2), eastern New York, western Pennsylvania, eastern Michigan, eastern Missouri, western Missouri, New Jersey, northern Texas, northern Ohio, southern California, Arizona, southern Iowa, and Minnesota, along with the circuit judgeship that is now temporary in the ninth circuit in the Pacific coast.

Additional judgeships would be created in the southern district of New York (2), southern California (2), eastern New York, northern Georgia, West Virginia, southern Texas, western Missouri.

WOMAN INJURED IN FALL AT GREEN BAY

Mrs. Joseph Swant, 51, Oneida, is in St. Vincent hospital, Green Bay, recovering from injuries received about 1 o'clock last Friday afternoon when she fell at the intersection of Walnut and Broadway in Green Bay. Mrs. Swant suffered two broken legs, and a fracture of her left arm. Her right leg was fractured above and below the knee, and the left leg was broken below the knee. Her arm was fractured below the elbow.

Solon Faces Pen

State Representative Lawrence C. O'Brien, above, Illinois politician leader, must serve 13 months in the Leavenworth penitentiary as the result of the U. S. supreme court's refusal to grant a review of the case in which he was convicted of violating the income tax laws. He was accused of evading tax on an income of nearly $500,000 over a period of three years.

LITTLE THEATRE PRESENTS FIRST PLAY OF SEASON

Kay Rogers, 11, Wins Audience in Role of Jim in "Treasure Island"

Tow headed Kay Rogers, 11 years old, completely won the hearts of his audience Saturday afternoon from the moment he stepped into the seventeenth century inn on the Lawrence Memorial chapel stage as young Jim in Robert Louis Stevenson's, "Treasure Island," first production of the Little Theatre of the Fox River Valley.

With tense excitement, youngsters and grown-ups alike eagerly relished Stevenson's story of bold pirates, buried treasure and youthful Jim's sea adventure. Little Kay Rogers not only made Jim seem real but he acted his part with a freshness that is unusual with numerous older amateurs in the cast.

Youngsters stood up in their seats when Pirate Captain Bones, ably played by Fred De Guire, fell dead in the shadowy room of the Admiral Ben Bow Inn and became breathlessly silent when the timbre sounded for the curtain to raise on each scene. They applauded their way through the four acts of the story suddenly come to life for them behind footlights.

Fine Lighting Effects Unusual lighting effects gave the play its atmosphere from the opening scene in the seaside inn to the shadowy recess on Spy Glass Mountain where the treasure was found. Shadows on the walls on the inn scenes gave a double meaning to the setting as the guttering candle flared in shadow beside the still sitting of bottles and the still sitting of the four acts of the story suddenly come to life for them behind footlights.

START WORK ON NEW BUILDING FOR MILK FIRM

Appleton Pure Milk Co. Structure Will Cost $50,000

Construction of a new building for the Appleton Pure Milk Co., has been started at 714 W. Washington. The structure will cost in excess of $50,000.

Workmen now are erecting that part of the building which will house the ice cream plant, butter factory and milk plant in the rear of the present office building. The entire plant will cover an area 82 feet wide by 100 feet long, including the site which is now occupied by the wood frame office structure.

Before spring, the old wood frame building is to be removed and the new structure will be extended to the front of the property. The front of the entire plant is to be constructed of face brick, and will be two stories high. The other parts of the structure are to be built of concrete blocks and steel.

The present milk plant on the lot next to the office building will be included in the new structure. The roof will be removed, and the second story of the new structure extended to the west to include the old plant, which is to be remodeled and rebuilt.

The butter factory and ice cream plant which is now in operation in the firm's plant on S. Victoria-st will be moved to the new building as soon as it is completed.

House Offices The second floor will house the office, laboratory and assembly room. Ample storage room for soda fountain equipment and supplies also will be provided on the second floor. A large condensing unit will be installed.

A garage, and a boiler room, 16 feet wide by 24 feet long is to be constructed in the rear of the plant. The new boiler room will be an extension of quarters which now house that part of the plant equipment.

The building is being erected by George Ashman and Son, building contractors.

Erection of steel for the roof structure and skylights on the home of the Appleton Post-Crescent on W. Washington and N. Superior-sts has been completed. Exterior stone work and decorative trimmings also have been completed. On Monday work got underway on the roof.

Windows also will be installed this week, and it is expected the structure will be closed in by Dec. 15. Aluminum spandrels designed to lend beauty to the structure was to be erected Monday. As soon as the building is closed in, temporary heating facilities will be provided.

Install Windows Windows for the new postoffice are to be installed this week. That structure has been under cover for some time and temporary heating facilities have been provided. Construction work on the basement floors also has been completed.

Plasterers are busy on the interior, most of the work being centered on the ceiling where finishing touches are being added. Most of the preliminary plastering has been finished.

After a week of laborious shoveling and scooping in the ruins of the old malthouse on N. Superior-st, excavation for the new ice manufacturing plant of the Lutz Ice Co. is nearing completion. A large power shovel was used to scrape out a basement from among the old sections of stone and brick foundations of the old malt house which at one time occupied the site. Workmen will start pouring concrete early this week. At the present time the footings are being put in.

Construction work on the new First English Lutheran church building on E. North and N. Drevs-sts is still in the closing stage. Although most of the room has been erected, there are parts of it that are still open. Most of the preliminary construction work on the exterior and interior of the structure has been completed, however.

Windows are being installed in the new English Lutheran church parsonage in the rear of the church on N. Ida-st. Stonework and preliminary construction of the interior has been finished. The new parsonage is to be occupied by the Rev. F. C. Reuter, pastor of the church.

ONLY UNFIT ARE LEFT BY WARS, SPEAKER HOLDS

Clark Eichelberger Condemns Nations That Spend Heavily for Armaments

"War is the survival of the unfit, not the fittest," Clark M. Eichelberger, executive head of the mid-west League of Nations association, told a handful of listeners Sunday night at the First Baptist church in his plea for Christians to support a world-wide policy of peace exemplified by the League of Nations and the World Court.

He condemned nations unable to take care of their unemployed at the present time for spending approximately $5,000,000,000 each year for armaments, $70,000,000,000 which is expended by the United States alone.

"War takes the physical best from a country, leaving the unfit for relief situation," he said. "The world can't afford to be so wasteful. People from its midst, as in the last war, without a mental, moral and social effect on it. After men have been taught to kill for five years, pathological results are bound to show in crime and social life."

Nobody Won "No one really won the world war. There is little difference between the victor and the vanquished. We know that Germany and her allies lost with a youthful generation in the present Germany thin-boned and stunted from war ravages. France has found that it is too great a price to pay in spite of the remarkable genius this country has shown in its rehabilitation and step-up to second financial place among nations. Great Britain probably lost the most with its ties loosened within the Empire and its practically bankrupt state. Certainly the United States was not a victor with its 7,000,000 unemployed."

The Manchurian question may settle the world for another great war or for universal peace, according to Mr. Eichelberger. He pointed out that the answer lies in the support of the United States in cooperating with other nations of the world, the strength of the great peace parties in Japan and China and the loyalty of League nations in their loyalty to the council.

He also said that this country is far behind other nations in the world in the search for peace, although there are factions for and against world peace in nearly every country today. He pointed out that the French mass want peace, that they are calling for disarmament, but they are fighting against political factors in the government. In Germany there are citizens who follow Strassman's belief in the League of Nations and those who cling to the old methods of German government. The peace movement in Japan is one of the strongest in the world, with England second, but both these countries are fighting militaristic groups.

Must Work Together There are those who would damn the next generation in order to make a dollar today, the speaker said, but the gains would be lost tomorrow with disease, misery and the lower standard of living among the masses. He also pointed out that an excessive nationalism on the part of so many nations to achieve the greatest prosperity is a paralysis to the economic world and that nations must work together instead of against each other.

"If the United States repudiates the World Court after it practically created it and 53 nations have kept it going, the world will face a calamity," he said.

Mr. Eichelberger pointed out that the World disarmament conference in Geneva next February does not mean that the United States will disarm alone among nations but that 60 nations will meet to agree to disarm together. He also pointed out that this country has a promise to fulfill, undertaken under separate treaty with Germany to disarm after Germany reduced its armaments. Nations ratifying the Versailles treaty at the end of the war agreed to the same policy.

"There are but two outcomes to another war," Mr. Eichelberger said. "Either the people will revolt into an overwhelming Russia or they will stick it out until the world is thrown back to another Middle Ages." A new war means greater loss of life with more scientific fighting, the destruction of non-combatants as well as the fighters and the wiping out of whole cities."

"It is of no good to fight over problems because nations must always meet around a table afterward to actually settle their affairs. The economic and population problems in Manchuria today will not be settled by warfare."

"War must be eliminated as a solution to any problem, world public opinion for peace must be created, the military spirit of youth must be quenched with international problems settled by the intellect of nations rather than war."

LIBRARY WILL INSTITUTE NEW CHARGE SYSTEM

"Self-service" Plan to Be Adopted Because of Increased Demand for Books

Because the circulation of the Appleton public library has increased so tremendously recently, a new charging system will be instituted on Jan. 2, Miss Florence Day, librarian, announced today.

The new system, a modified Detroit charging plan, is an adaptation of the "self-service" principle so widely employed by banks, retail stores and business generally. It is adopted to save time for both the library attendants and the public, and to check the mutilation and theft of books. With the inauguration of this system it is expected that all waiting lines at the desk will be eliminated, and each patron will help check out his own books, and it is hoped that the new plan will serve as a deterrent in the abuse of library volumes.

The main desk will be moved to a position between the two entrances to the main reading room. One door will be used for entrance, and the other for exit. Patrons will be supplied with identification cards, which they will be expected to present each time they draw out a book. After a book is selected the patron must write his identifying number in an open space on the book card found in a special pocket at the front of each volume. Thus he charges the book to himself, and then stops at the attendant's desk, where the librarian compares his identification number with the one placed on the book card. After the attendant has stamped the date on the date slip of the book the act of charging is completed.

Eliminate Crowds

Pencils will be provided at convenient tables in the library, so there will be no congestion around the desk as patrons are marking their cards.

The library staff is now preparing 12,000 identification cards to be distributed when the new system is put into effect. All existing fines must be paid before an identification card can be secured.

The system, similar to the one being used in the Milwaukee library, was evolved after careful investigation into methods used in banking and business practices, and the results are based on the active cooperation of the user in the operation of automatic telephones, passenger operated elevators and self-service stores.

The basic simplicity of the system makes it unnecessary to change to any great extent the equipment or supplies now in use at the library.

AUTHORITY PRAISES WORK OF MURSELL

Critic Comments Favorably on Book of Which Appleton Man Is Co-author

The Psychology of School Music Training, a book recently published by Prof. J. R. Mursell of Lawrence, Kansas, and Mabelle Glenn, director of school music in Kansas City, has recently received a favorable comment from C. E. Seashore of the University of Iowa. Mr. Seashore is an authority on the judging of musical testing experiments.

A letter recently received by the co-authors states, "I have just read your book on The Psychology of School Music Training, with much interest, and hasten to congratulate you on the rich and relevant content clearly and vigorously expressed."

"In general, I heartily approve your points of view, especially as to the functional approach, the importance of self-expression, the demand that the teacher of music should be musical and musically educated, and your device for motivation. In reading the book I wonder which of you wrote it because it has the continuity of the single writer, yet you are fortunate in combining good educational psychology with good musical common sense and information."

42 STUDENTS HAVE PERFECT RECORDS

Four Rural Schools Make Reports on Attendance for Six Weeks

Forty-two students of four rural schools were neither absent nor tardy during November, according to reports received from A. G. Mead, county superintendent of schools. Following are the schools and the names of the students with the perfect records:

Cedar View school, town of Maple Creek, Miss Muriel Buchholz, teacher, Anna Ehrenstahl, Delilah and Irene Witt, Vivian and Louisa Young, Robert Hoffman and Garrett Flanagan.

500 Men Seek Work On State Underpass Job—75 Needed

More than 500 Outagamie-co men already have registered at the county highway office here seeking jobs on the excavation project now under way on Highway 10 just west of the city. The excavation is being done in preparation for construction of an underpass at the point where Highway 10 intersects the Chicago and Northwestern railroad tracks. Only the excavation work is being done this fall and the contract for building the underpass will be let next spring. The work is being done by Diekmann Construction Co. of Kiel, at a cost of $25,000. Funds for the work are supplied by the state.

Under the terms of the contract the excavation work is to be done entirely by hand and 75 men are expected to be employed. Men who register for jobs must tell how many persons are dependent on them for support and how many weeks they have been out of work in the last two years. Only Wisconsin residents are eligible for jobs on the viaduct. The application forms filled out at the highway office here are sent to the state highway office at Madison where the eligibility of the applicants is determined. The state then sends the cards of eligible men to the contractor and he hires his workers from this list.

MORGAN DENNIS DOG ETCHINGS PLACED ON DISPLAY HERE

The Morgan Dennis dog etchings are on display again in the art alcove of the Lawrence college library, and in the office of the student secretary at Brock hall.

Morgan Dennis, the artist, has won for himself international fame as a reproducer of characteristic dog poses. Portrayals of all phases of dog life from puppyhood to the age of mature dignity are included in the exhibit. The artist, Morgan Dennis, was doing portrait sketches for a Boston newspaper at the time he became interested in etching. The incident is told in his story to the studio of W. A. W. Bicknell, an etcher of considerable reputation. While in Bicknell's studio he proceeded to do a sketch of the artist, although he was more interested in the collection of etchings placed about the studio. A few weeks later, Mr. Dennis paid another visit to the artist's studio announcing that he had thrown up his newspaper job to become a student of Mr. Bicknell. Accompanying him was his dog, Bozo.

From his work as a student to his finished products of today, Morgan Dennis progressed rapidly. His love for animals made it natural that he should do his best work in portraying his mute friends. However, his studies were not confined to portrayals of animal life. It was thought the sympathetic interest of Zigzag that Dennis had the opportunity to make for his own possession a number of sketches of fantastic life backstage.

A few seasons later, after two more summers of hard study at Providence, Massachusetts, Dennis went to Ireland, there to make sketches of Irish life, and scenes notable among them are studies of some picturesque and beautiful Irish castles. England also became familiar with his work.

His first animal portrayal was done incidentally when he made a little portrait in dry point of his dog, Bozo, and sent it to his friends as a Christmas card. The portrait was a great success and a dealer who was familiar with his work asked to display some of the cards. He further suggested that Dennis make other dog plates. The result was that the next summer he made five large plates of dogs. They at once met with acclaim so that today Morgan Dennis is best known for his sketches of dogs and a dog's life.

SEEK BIDS ON STOKER FOR COUNTY GARAGE

Sealed proposals will be received by the county highway department up to 2 o'clock Monday afternoon, Dec. 14, on an automatic coal stoker which will be installed at the county garage on Highway 10. The stoker must be large enough to meet all requirements at the county garage and each bid must be accompanied by specifications.

WERNER PRESIDES AT SHAWANO COURT

Judge Edgar V. Werner was at Shawano today where he was scheduled to preside at sessions of the December term of court, which started today. Judge Werner was accompanied by W. Lam H. Kreske, circuit court reporter. They expect to be in Shawano most of this week.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years, and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, just a healing, soothing vegetable laxative safe and pleasant.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They help cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you should find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets.

Thousands take them every night to keep right. Try them. 15c, 30c, 60c.

Santa Suggests New Song Plates

A brand new gift for the home-maker who is an inveterate hostess is a set of the new French peasant plates that have a little tune for their center design.

They come in the gayest color and each plate of the four, eight, or twelve sets, has a different French air on it, each labeled so you will know well what song you must sing when you finish eating, quite the reverse action from Little Tommy Tucker who had to sing BEFORE he ate.

For a bridge table or a luncheon these plates are most decorative and surely entertaining. And mother, a fussy child, a fretful or almost any woman would love them.

YULE MAILING TO BE TOPIC OF MEET

The second meeting of the newly organized Fox River Valley Postmaster's association will be held Tuesday evening at Conway hotel. Invitations have been extended by the association to 185 postmasters within a radius of 50 miles of Appleton to become members of the new association. Christmas mailing problems will be discussed.

The new association was organized at a meeting in Appleton early in November when Emory A. Greunke, postmaster here, invited 15 postmasters to attend. The postmasters decided to organize the valley body and invite all postmasters within a radius of 50 miles of Appleton. They will meet monthly in Appleton, unless another meeting place is arranged for at a previous meeting.

John Farrell, Green Bay postmaster, is president, and Greunke is secretary.

Valley Postmasters Will Hold Meeting Here Tuesday Night

The body of Fred Wagner, 75-year-old retired railroad man, was taken from the rapids of the Fox river at Kaukauna about 8:45 Sunday morning by a group of searchers led by Thomas Hinchey. Volunteers had started the canal leading to the power-house here since last Wednesday evening. Sunday morning at 7 o'clock the canal was drained.

The body was found in two feet of water, and was prevented from being washed downstream by an overhanging tree root. The level of the water in the rapids was lowered by the draining of the canal.

Wagner was missed from his usual haunts Tuesday, and relatives immediately notified police. He was seen early last Tuesday afternoon, it was learned later, walking in Dodge street near the canal. A note hanging inside was found in his apartment in the first National bank building. Because of the rocks at the power plant, it is believed that he jumped into the rapids near the railroad trestle bridge in the rear of the power plant.

Nearly a thousand people lined the banks of the canal watching, as the water was drained.

Survivors are two sons: Alfred, Kaukauna; Henry, Green Bay; and three daughters, Mrs. Otto Ludtke, Kaukauna; Mrs. Emil Gressel, Green Bay; and Mrs. Otto Mike, Shawano.

Funeral services will be held at 1:30 Wednesday afternoon at the home of Otto Ludtke and at 2 o'clock at the Reformed church, Kaukauna. Interment will be in the Union cemetery.

HEALTH CLINIC IS PLANNED DECEMBER 9

Monthly Examinations to Be Conducted at School in Little Chute

Outagamie-co's monthly child health center, by arrangement with the bureau of child welfare, state board of health, will be held Wednesday, Dec. 9, at St. John's school in Little Chute. It is announced by Miss Marie Klein, county nurse.

Dr. Elizabeth Taylor, staff physician of the state hospital, will conduct the center, assisted by Miss Klein, and all members of health age will be invited to the free physical examination. By their mothers are urged to attend the center for the purpose of consulting Dr. Taylor on important matters of prenatal care.

Athletics do not offer the only means of establishing comparative excellence among states. Consider, for example, the state parent-teacher organization, the infant mortality rates among the states represented in the Big Ten. Wisconsin and Minnesota were tied for first place in point of a maternal mortality last year, standing but by maternal lives for every 1,000 births, and in infant mortality Wisconsin and Iowa tied for third place, losing 56 infants per every 1,000 live births to Minnesota's 58, and Illinois's 58, the survey shows.

The hours of the Little Chute center will be 9 to 10 a.m. and 1 to 4:30 p.m.

MILLIONS EYE BRIDGE BATTLE OF 2 MASTERS

Culbertson and Lenz Start Opening Games of Marathon Tonight

New York—(AP)—A marathon game of cards which is exciting millions of people will start tonight. One player is so confident that he has bet 5 to 1. The wager is that his wife will defeat another whom he acknowledges has a superior in actual play, whom many consider as the world's best and who as an amateur magician with a deck can give professional gamblers cards and spades.

To the fact that his wife will be his partner and is largely responsible for his success in a game which has brought him romance and riches Ely Culbertson attributes the widespread interest in his contract bridge match with Sidney S. Lenz and Oswald Jacoby.

At 8 o'clock tonight the elaborate drawing room of Culbertson's skyscraper apartment, off Parkave will be cleared of all but players, referees, scorekeeper and butler. The doors will be locked. New decks of cards will be shuffled by the referee. A quartet will cut. Then begins a test of rival bidding systems in a game which has spread like optimism during a bull market, displacing its parent, auction bridge more rapidly than auction did whist.

Culbertson and Lenz have contracted to play 150 rubbers by Jan. 15. The duration of the match will be almost six weeks there will be play every Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday night.

Culbertson has posted $5,000 against $1,000 by Lenz. Any winnings go to charities specified in the contract.

The prestige of victory will add to the potential income of the winner from writings, lectures and the like on the "best" system.

West Pointer is Referee
Laws and ethics of contract bridge as published by the Whist club of New York will prevail. The man on the spot to see that they are enforced will be Lieut. Alfred M. Gruenther, who is attached to West Point and is a specialist in the conduct of bridge tournaments.

The rivals' methods of playing once the dummy is down are alike. In fact Culbertson has freely said Lenz is one of the ten best. Many players regard Lenz as incomparable in Sherlock Holmes ability to deduce from bids, leads, dummy and conventions long established in whist and auction just what each player holds. They think also he is the master of all in squeeze and elimination plays, grand coups and the like.

To the average amateur player of contract the match probably will test original bids of two more than anything else. Such bids are forcing in the Culbertson system, requiring partner to continue at least until a game contract is reached. Lenz makes original bids on two fewer cards than Culbertson, and the bid merely invites partner to continue on if possible. Lenz thinks there is too much of a difference in card values between Culbertson bids of one and bids of two. Culbertson argues that when an original bid of one is made with a hand much stronger than the minimum, if the partner can't go on there is not a game in the two hands.

Just before the battle of champions they said:

Culbertson—Such outstanding players might win in spite of the handicap of the so-called official system.

Lenz—We cannot fail to win given a break in the cards.

Culbertson estimates the factor of luck in the match at 8 per cent.

Your Birthday

"SAGITTARIUS"

If December 8th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m., from 2:30 p. m. to 4 p. m., and from 9 p. m. to 11 p. m. The danger periods are from 8 a. m. to 9:55 a. m., and from 6:30 p. m. to 8 p. m.

The planetary aspects governing December 8th should bring a day of variety and interest; interruptions will delay work and surprises will vary the monotony of the day's routine. The benefits derived will be found in your mental storehouse and not in your material gains.

The children born on this December 8th will be born with an impetus to achieve things and will not be content to play the part of a mediocre role on life's stage. They will have a great deal of personal magnetism and charm and their winning manner will help to pave the way for them.

As a December 8th person, you are prudent and reserved and are seldom seen off your dignity. Your manner invites attention and respect, but it discourages love and affection. You cherish certain ideals—respect for justice, a pride in good work, and emphatically a sense of proportion. Your motives are not selfish, your character is irreproachable and your efficiency is recognizable. You are eminently fitted for positions requiring brains and skill.

You are too self-sufficient to be popular and there is a danger of your turning out a prig. You are too self-controlled to ever let yourself go; you do not know the meaning of the word "interference" in anything. You do not suffer through the usual human frailties; neither do you enjoy the usual trivial human pleasures. You do not know how to be an understanding person, although you try, in your great sense of justice, to be fair. You are not a sympathetic person, for you feel little in common with the ordinary run of mankind. Your emotions are too well schooled to permit you to be warmly affectionate. You never betray your real feelings.

Your actions and your words are studied; you are not given to doing things spontaneously. You are de-

Who's Who, What's What Of Culbertson-Lenz Match

Participants:
Ely Culbertson, Russian emigre of American descent, who has gained wealth and a great following with a system of bidding in the game of contract, will play with

Mrs. Josephine Murphy Culbertson, to whom he gives much of the credit for his success, against Sidney S. Lenz, landowner, amateur magician, big shot of the so-called "official" system, recognized by Culbertson as a player without a superior, and Oswald Jacoby, amateur contract expert, former football player, the youngest of the four.

Conditions:
150 rubbers to start at 8 o'clock to night and to be completed by Jan. 15. Last rubber of a session must begin before 12:30 a. m.

Play, Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday nights unless further sessions are necessary.

Possessor of net score, meaning highest total score, after 150 rubbers wins.

Standardized rules of contract prevail. Each side must play its own system.

Stakes are: Culbertson $5,000; Lenz $1,000, winnings to go to charity.

Reasons for the match:
Lenz and other experts promulgated the "Official" system in what they regarded as an effort to end confusion in the game. Culbertson refused to join the "Official" group and was criticized. He retorted sharply. The upshot was his challenge to Lenz last September to test the rival systems.

Differences in the systems:
Culbertson original bids of two require bidding to continue at least until a game contract is reached.

Lenz's bids of two are invitations to partners to keep on bidding if possible.

Culbertson prefers original bids of suit. Lenz often bids no trump where Culbertson would bid suit.

High card valuation, trump support and appraisal of no-trump possibilities vary.

Referees: Ralph J. Leibenderfer for Culbertson, Fred L. Rogan for Lenz, Lieut. Alfred M. Gruenther, U. S. A.

UNEMPLOYED WORK ON OJIBWA'S TOWN HALL

Ojibwa—In a northwood's setting of tall pine is arising a monument to this little community's enterprise in helping meet problems of the depression and in providing work for its unemployed.

The monument is a town hall, and the jobless are doing most of the work. Each worker is required to give a day's work for each day he receives pay. Stones for the foundation were purchased from farmers for 25 cents a load, and the farmers furnished them free of charge to the site as their contribution to the project.

Part of the building funds are being raised by card parties and other forms of entertainment.

The building will be used for meetings of women's clubs and the town board, elections, dances, card parties and large gatherings.

The building is expected to be one of the finest town halls of any village the size of Ojibwa.

DOG AWARDED MEDAL FOR SAVING FAMILY

"Baldy," Owned by Fond du Lac Man, Gets Title of Hero

Fond du Lac—(AP)—"Baldy," a Boston bull awarded the title of Wisconsin's most heroic and intelligent dog, saved his owner, N. Blank, Fond du Lac theatre manager, and the Blank family from possible deaths by suffocation when their home was destroyed by fire last June.

"Baldy" Friday was awarded the title in a contest conducted at Chicago by the National Anti-Vivisection society to determine the country's outstanding dog heroes. He will receive a bronze medal in addition to the title.

The dog's barking awakened a member of the family at 4 a. m. the day of the fire. The family escaped as flames and smoke filled the upper story. Blank said if it had not been for the dog's barking, the family might have suffocated.

In making the award at Chicago, Clarence E. Richard, managing director of the society, said:

"Here is a perfect example of how a dog has cheerfully risked his life to protect his master. In making these awards, we have but one purpose to impress upon the public that dogs render a real service to humanity, and, as a rule, deserve better treatment than is their lot."

The society makes awards semi-annually in the states. "Baldy" medal is the first awarded in Wisconsin.

APPOINT 3 TO ENFORCE NEW STATE WEIGHT LAW

Madison—(AP)—The state highway commission today announced the appointments of A. C. Hartman, Jeanne; Lious Gould, Rhinelander; and Armer Gunnison, Madison, as weight law inspectors.

The three men will be placed on duty as soon as they have been trained by W. J. Philip, who, until now, has been the only state inspector. Provision for the new positions was made by the last legislature which appropriated a fund out of the increased gas tax.

Beginning January 1, the new appointees will assist the public service commission in the enforcement of the ton-mile tax, the highway commission said.

REPORT 14 CASES OF TULAREMIA IN STATE

Madison—(AP)—With 14 cases of tularemia, one fatal, reported in the state since Nov. 1, the state board of health today reported a false start all persons wear rubber gloves while skinning, cleaning and preparing rabbits for the table.

The disease has been increasing in the state during the past three years, the department said. There were five cases reported in 1929, fifteen in 1930, and six in 1931 there have been 20 cases reported.

The board warned hunters who have ears or hands on their hands should take precautions to guard against the disease.

The New MAYTAG... with quality features you'd expect on a much higher priced machine... constructed to take the punishment of years of hard use... every hidden part made and assembled with painstaking care... in short, typical Maytag quality at the price of a "second choice" make of washer.

This New Maytag cleanses by the famous Maytag Gyrafoam method—fast, positive yet gentle. The Gyrafator is counter-sunk to the level of the tub bottom—an extra quality feature that saves wear and tear on clothes. There is the "sediment zone"—another Maytag development which prevents dirt from being washed back into clean clothes. Extra large rolls on the wringer gently remove the last vestige of dirt—but save the buttons.

And the New Maytag is quiet. It stays quiet. Because the moving parts are so carefully made and put together that they don't wear out and get loose. That quietness is a sign of the built-in quality that makes this New Maytag such an amazing value at the price.

BUT HOW MUCH TO THE U. S.?

There is a danger in the governor's tax measure that arises because of the superior power of the United States government and that is embodied in the question: To what extent is congress going to increase income taxes to make up the federal deficit now approaching two billion?

Will congress go to the same extent it went when the country was in need directly after the World war and a 65 per cent surtax existed? If so, and the governor's measure is passed, the total surtax will be 95 per cent and together with the regular taxes will take more than a man's income if he happens to be in the high brackets affected.

The highest surtax in the federal law at present is 20 per cent but obviously the country is never going to overtake its deficit unless this is increased. To what extent will it be increased?

Just as obviously that should be known by the Wisconsin legislature before it starts adding further burdens to backs that, however strong, may become overloaded.

Just as obviously too there should be an understanding between state and federal governments as to what sort of taxation should be passed by each to replenish the public exchequer or to provide for emergencies.

It is all right to point out that real estate in Wisconsin pays a high percentage of the expense of Wisconsin's government. It does. But it doesn't pay anything to the federal government and the income taxes that will be again tapped to relieve real estate in Wisconsin are already shouldering the heaviest part of the burden of the federal government which needs something like 4 billions annually for ordinary expenditures.

Real estate doesn't pay a nickel for the army and the navy, the interest or retirement of 20 billions of war debt, the hundreds of millions paid in veterans' bonus. It doesn't pay a sou towards the other hundreds of millions necessary to pay senators, representatives, judges, marshals, prosecutors, prohibition spies or erect federal court-houses, postoffices, customs offices and so on.

The necessity of preventing all taxing bodies from resorting to the same source of taxation was recognized by congress in relation to inheritance taxes after it was found that so many taxing units were taking a slice from the estates of deceased persons that some of them were not only jeopardized but actually wholly dissipated in paying taxes. The federal government then amended its inheritance tax law so that an estate that pays an inheritance tax to a state is given credit to the extent of 80 per cent thereof and pays only about 20 per cent of double taxes.

To require taxes from incomes is now the popular source of attack. It always will be popular. There is much underlying justice in the statement that a man should pay taxes in proportion to his ability to pay. But what is this proportion? And what is the extent to which we should relieve real estate in Wisconsin from further taxation?

In most respects, and aside from the depression and the great hardships it has inflicted upon farmers and unemployed home owners, real estate owners are a favored people. That is shown by answering this question: Would you prefer a $5,000 income as a professional or salaried man or the same income as rent from business block or apartment building? As soon as he who earns his income becomes ill or otherwise incapacitated the income stops, but the income from real estate doesn't.

CHRISTMAS IS COMING

We are entering a period of the year when our envy of a youngster's lot becomes poignant.

For the benevolent old saint who lies somewhere up in the Hudson Bay country, or perhaps even north of Es-kimoland, and toils all year in an immense toy factory, is about to lock up the door and start that annual pilgrimage of his around the world loaded down with bottomless packs of shining things to make children's eyes glisten if they do not come right out on their cheeks.

It makes no difference how hungry a child may be, how cold or how disappointed, one thing surely will not fail him, and that is old Kriss Kringle.

Hasn't Kriss stood on the corner and asked him just what he wanted? Hasn't he listened patiently, pocketing his letter?

This season presents an age-old question, which if you avoid you will regret for it has to do with the keenness of pain that comes to a child who has misplaced his faith.

A disappointed faith makes lumps in throats, hurts and baffled feelings in the wonder why they were forgotten. It is a duty to see that no wistful youngster will have any occasion to wonder why Kriss Kringle has crossed him off his calling list. If people will interpret the spirit of giving as they should interpret it no stocking will be limp on Christmas morning and the voice of every child will be as lilting as a Christmas carol.

It takes such a little to make children happy, a doll, a horn, a top, a candy cane. When or where or how can more of that wonderful thing called happiness be created so easily and cheaply than now?

We do not know how those who can afford to look out a bit for others can better themselves or secure a greater or more enduring happiness than entering upon the spirit of Christmas and becoming responsible for the fact that a youngster has not given his trust in vain.

If stockings are bare all the tinselled glamour of all the evergreen trees in the whole world, all the talk and story and song cannot bring back the charm that somehow has been denied.

Those whose frames have become hardened to the world's blustering and biting winds, whose calloused hands can stand the raw cold, who are used to the fickle currents of fate and the disappointments that come with the realization that "life is real and life is earnest," still want, whatever the work or the trouble, to stand between the youngsters and the stark pulsations of reality.

"Yet a little longer," we plead for the children. That is a prayer that has in it part of the starshine of Bethlehem's magic night.

WE NOW KNOW

At last we know why the World war came upon us. No less an authority than Lieut.-Governor Luren D. Dickinson of Michigan settles the issue beyond reasonable doubt. It is a wonder that, amid all the arguments and debates that have been going on since 1918, more people have not seen the light with as clear a vision as Mr. Dickinson.

In an address at Grand Rapids, the Lieut.-Governor said the World war was visited upon the world as a punishment for excessive drinking and crime. Said he: "Pre-war drinking and crime could not go on, and God sent the terrible war to punish us."

No one will deny that his premise is as sound, perhaps, as many others handed out to a suffering world, though a terrible war would seem a dire punishment for a beneficent Creator to inflict upon a transgressing humanity.

Mr. Dickinson's statement fails to account for the marked increase in crime and drinking since 1918. He has overlooked the records of our criminal courts and penitentiaries, or the statistics compiled by the Wickersham commission.

One can hardly refrain from suggesting that:

"He that negotiates between God and man
As God's ambassador, the grand concerns
Of judgment and of mercy, should beware
Of lightness in his speech."

Ancient cloisters, or parts of them, are still to be found in many parts of London; they are reminders of the days when the city boasted spacious monastic establishments.

Hawaii was a kingdom until a provisional government was set up in 1893. A republican government was established with Sanford B. Dole, a missionary's son, as president.

THE SNOW, the snow, the beautiful snow was just beginning to drift down as we commenced pounding out this column on Saturday . . . at that time it was a pretty weak attempt but by the time this effort gets into print, you may be shoveling snowdrifts . . . winter has come . . . get the red flannels dusted . . . hunt up the tire chains . . . (don't try to put 'em on—you can't) . . . start to think about fixing that broken garage door . . . and the cellar window that needs new glass . . . see if you can find the mate to the one overshoe now in your possession . . . make out a Christmas shopping list . . . tear it up and start over again . . . try to find the list of people who sent you Christmas cards last year . . . you can't do that either . . .

Tother day, the ed, in the columns to our left, practically dared the police department to do something about the parking situation. Either the coppers don't care or they don't give a damn. Anyway, our gallumphing coupe sat outside all the next morning in a two hour parking area and went unnoticed.

Was the Reporter Entirely Sober?
Now here's an accident that WAS an accident. It happened down south near Stone Mountain, sub. It seems that three fellows were riding in a wagon pulled by two horses and an automobile came along and smashed into them. Well, folks, you have no idea of what happened, but bark to the report:

When the dust cleared away, one of the three men was sitting on the far horse and his two friends had been thrown through the side of a house. The near horse was sitting in the wagon. AND a harness buckle flew off and struck a pedestrian and knocked him down a bank. Two people, who went to help him, stumbled, one of them breaking a pair of ribs and the other cutting his face.

Meanwhile, the automobile driver started up his car again and drove away. Whatta car!

Good old Kansas City. Remember a year or so ago when a lady was acquitted for shooting her husband after a bridge game quarrel? Now K. C. has a new one. A lady had a battle with her boy friends because he became jealous of the attention she paid to her dog. She became so perturbed that she broke his bottle of licker. Then he threatened to take doggie for a ride. So the lady up and shot him with a big shotgun and terminated his career. She had, of course, a good feminine explanation:

"I'm sorry I shot him, but he had no business treating Snooks that way."

The Drive for Charity begins tomorrow and let's see how much dough Appleton can raise. We've suggested from time to time that Appleton is too smug, selfish and cultured to get that much together. Now let's see if we're a liar.

CHRISTMAS TIPS

Christmas shopper, if for me
You are store-ward bound today,
And a handkerchief you see
Made of silk and very gay,
Though admire it others might
All my handkerchiefs are white.

Should some hosiery in a box,
Gaudy colored, catch your eye,
Though I am in need of socks,
Pass the reds and purples by.
I shall have to take 'em back
If you do not pick 'em black.

If within a necktie store
You discover something grand,
Let me tell you just once more
I don't wear a four-in-hand.
If the gift is meant for me,
Just a bow-tie let it be.

If suspenders catch your eye,
As no doubt the bright ones will,
In all safety you may buy
I am one who wears 'em still!
To your color choice I'll bow.
No one sees 'em anyhow!

Looking Backward

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Monday, Dec. 10, 1906

W. H. Russell and T. A. Gallagher left that morning for Chicago, New York and other eastern cities where they were to spend some time on business.

Mrs. A. Miller, 652 Oneida-st., were to leave the following afternoon for Green Bay to visit with relatives until after the holidays.

Mrs. John R. Wolf and daughter, Gertrude, left that morning for West Baden where they expected to remain for several weeks.

Moses Blüstein had returned from a trip through northern Wisconsin and Michigan.

H. L. Flower was a guest the previous day of friends at Green Bay.

Harold Lindquist spent the previous Sunday as the guest of friends at Oshkosh.

Miss Sarah Moran spent the previous Sunday with relatives at Neenah.

Herman Koletska visited the previous day with friends in Neenah and Menasha.

A number of persons spent the preceding evening ice skating on the government canal in the vicinity of the Lake-er drawbridge.

TEN YEARS AGO
Monday, Dec. 5, 1921

President Harding, although the arms conference seemed on the threshold of success, gave notice to the world powers that day that if a definite agreement was not reached on limitation of armament he believed the United States should expend more than $500,000,000 on its army and navy during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1922.

The marriage of Miss Ella Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Smith, Kaukauna, and Frank Mitchell, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Mitchell, 247 South River-st., took place at the home of the Rev. T. A. Greenwood, Menominee, Mich., a week previous.

Mr. and Mrs. William Menning, Greenville, had announced the marriage of their daughter, Harriet, to Arthur Mitchell, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Mitchell, Larsen, on Dec. 2 at Menominee, Mich.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Gosha, 1207 Emily-st., entertained 25 friends and relatives at dinner at their home the previous Sunday evening in honor of their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary.

George F. Werner, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., was in Milwaukee the previous Saturday attending a special meeting of the Y. M. C. A. retirement fund committee.

MORE FAMILIES SHOULD KEEP GOATS

A milk goat breeder tells me—mind, I know as little about goats as the average doctor does—that cream does not rise on goat's milk, although goat's milk contains a larger proportion of fat than cow's milk does. He declares that cream will not rise on goat's milk unless the milk is kept at 80 degrees F.

According to a Bulletin (No. 320) issued by the Bureau of Animal Industry, U. S. Agriculture Department, goat's milk contains 5.99 per cent fat and cow's milk only 3.9 per cent fat. Perhaps that is a trifle higher than goat's milk ordinarily contains. Other sources put the proportion of fat in goat's milk at somewhere between 4.07 per cent and 4.80 per cent.

Goat's milk contains rather less sugar than cow's milk, the average milk sugar (lactose) content of goat's milk being 4.50 per cent and of cow's milk 5.30 per cent.

The same milk goat breeder who furnishes these data with their sources indicated, tells me that goat's milk is alkaline in reaction whereas he says cow's milk is acid. That is not quite correct as to cow's milk; cow's milk is alkaline, and only becomes acid as it sours.

However, goat's milk is slightly superior to cow's milk as a food for infant or child. It is superior because it is slightly more nutritious, slightly more digestible, and especially free from tubercle bacilli.

The goat is practically immune to tuberculosis. The cow is extremely susceptible to tuberculosis. Cow's milk is not unlikely to contain tubercle bacilli. I don't know, if indeed anybody knows, just what effect such bovine tubercle bacilli may have in the baby or child, if the baby or child receives as food cow's milk which happens to contain living bovine tubercle bacilli. Many pathologists believe bovine tubercle bacilli may produce glandular and bone tuberculosis in children. The more I study the matter the less I know about it. But anyway, I think we should insist on one of three measures to protect infants and children against the possibility of such infection, namely, certified milk exclusively, or else tuberculin testing of all cows and removal of all reactors from the milk-producing herd, or else boiling of all milk or pasteurizing (pasteurization) to kill off any such germs before the milk is given the baby or child.

Of course your family is fortunate enough to have a milk goat of its own, or to be able to buy goat's milk, the baby or child is in luck.

Prejudices such as the one based on the notion that goats are malodorous, should not deter any family from keeping a milk goat. Does are no more malodorous than are cows. A goat requires comparatively less feed than a cow, per quart of milk produced, and gives two to four quarts of the purest and choicest milk daily.

Suburban, village and small town families are often situated so that a milk goat can find her own feed throughout the summer months.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Dynamite Prescribed

If you don't believe your skin will absorb anything, maybe next time you pass a place where they are using dynamite, nitroglycerin or any of the high strength gelatins, just rub some on your hands, and if you don't get the most infernal headache from the bit absorbed thru your hands . . . (D. V. E.)

Answer—Now, then, brother, if you can get a group of philanthropists to back the project, I'll submit myself as the subject for the experiment. I to have control of the air I breathe while the experiment is being done. If I get a headache or anything else unpleasant I'll pay the agreed sum to charity. If I don't your backers will have to make the contribution. Now put up or get out of my way.

Function Is Vague

What is the function of the spleen? (Mrs. J. B. C.)

Answer—The spleen may be removed without serious ill effect. Therefore its function or functions must be shared by other structures which carry on when the spleen is removed; especially the lymph nodes and the bone marrow. We believe the spleen has something to do with the manufacture of red corpuscles and of the hemoglobin in them. Perhaps the spleen furnishes some internal secretion or hormone which has an effect on the regeneration of red corpuscles and hemoglobin in the liver. But we are still in the dark about all this.

The Tynmites

By Hal Cochran

THE balloon which took the little pup out through the air kept going up. Said Clowry, "What are we to do? We can't stand 'round and stare. That balloon might burst and then crash down and drop the dog upon the ground. We'll have to find some way to get it down out of the air."

"When we walked 'round this town I spied a dandy police department plane. I'll try and borrow that. If I have any luck at all and do not take a sudden fall, I may turn out a hero in a little policeman's hat."

So to the station house they tore and shortly they let out a roar when Coppy was allowed to use the dandy little plane. Said Coppy, "I will hop right in. A thrilling ride will then begin. I hope that my attempt to save that dog is not in vain."

He took his seat and cried, "All right! Now watch while I sail out of sight." The motor then began to hum. Into the air he sailed. The more Tynmites, with a sigh, watched him as he sailed through the sky. "If he succeeds," said Scouty, "a real hero he'll be hailed."

It wasn't long till Coppy found the wee dog floating all around. "My goodness," he said to himself, "the poor dog's mighty scared. I'm tickled that I came up here, 'cause I know there's not a thing to fear. When he is rescued he will know how lucky he has fared."

Just then the plane swerved 'round about and almost threw poor Coppy out. He hung on tight, however, while the plane dipped down and up. It seemed a real unfriendly breeze was tossing it around with ease. Thought Coppy, "Gee, it is no cinch to save that little pup."

A Bystander In Washington

BY HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington—Perhaps as unusual as any phase of this sea-sawing contest, Republicans and Democrats have engaged in since last November in regard to control of the house is the case of Paul John Kvale of Benson, Minn.

Young Kvale is the sole Farmer-Labor member of the house. In addition to that, he is 35 years old, handsome, a hard worker and ambitious. He was his father's secretary for a number of years while the elder Kvale was in congress and succeeded him after the parent died.

Kvale for the last year has been one of the most talked of men in Washington.

For it looked for a while as if this "youngster," perhaps better known to his colleagues as a congressional secretary than as a member of congress, might be in a position to make everybody "talk turkey" to him.

Man of the Hour
Democrats and Republicans sat continuously on the anxious seat. Almost every day brought something to increase their anxiety or raise their hopes about the matter of who would muster enough strength to organize the house in the coming congress.

During those days he was the man of the hour. Upon the way he cast his vote might hang the fate of all concerned. He found himself in the enviable position of possibly holding the balance of power.

He has nothing to say about patronage in his state and attends no party caucuses on capitol hill. He doesn't even sit in any particular place on the house floor, though he usually may be found near Minnesotans because they are his personal friends.

He admits himself that there have been times when he felt that he stood out like a "sore thumb" in the house chamber.

Situation Changes
To his credit, however, it must be said that he kept a discreet silence during those days when he was so much talked about. If he felt any elation he kept it concealed.

At present Kvale is pretty much out of the organization picture. He has been shoved somewhat brusquely from his strategic position and finds himself again just Kvale, Farmer-Labor, Minnesota—one-man bloc as of old.

The Democrats with their 217 votes apparently will have no need of his ballot. The Republicans need more than just a single vote to stay in at this stage.

But, though his advantage was of short duration, Kvale doubtless feels that it was worth while. One thing is sure—Kvale is far better known at the present perhaps than he ever dreamed he would be in so short a time.

HORSE AGAIN COMING BACK INTO HIS OWN THROUGHOUT NATION

Breeders No Longer Singing Blues About Old Dobbin, Exhibition Reveals

Chicago (AP)—Old Dobbin is making a comeback.

Sleek, often-dappled Percherons, classic Clydesdales, Belgians and Shires are prancing back into prominence again.

For many years, horse breeders have been singing the blues. But now it's a happy refrain.

This was strongly evidenced Saturday at the International Livestock show. Officials of all the purebred registry associations recoiled in amazement at the sight of registered horses. The Horse Association of America cited figures to show an increased demand for good, hard-pulling draft horses.

All during the week of the exposition, horse classes drew more on-lookers and more applause.

At the office of the Percheron Society of America, registrars have been receiving the last 11 months for 3,100 new births. The transfer society have been numerous. Ellis McFarlane, secretary of the association, said this was due to farmers replenishing their droves.

Many reasons were related by breeders for the increased demand for blooded horse stock.

Cheap Feed Helps

Wayne Dinsmore, one of America's best known horsemen and secretary for years of the Horse Association of America, said the prime reason was the cheapness of feeding commodities.

"The big years of the horse decline were the war years, when grain prices shot sky-high," Dinsmore said. "Wheat, corn and oats were too high-priced to feed to horses. The farmer motorized his acres. Now, these commodities are nearer their normal levels, and the farmer realizes it's cheaper to raise fuel for horse-power than it is to buy fuel for motor power."

The decrease in horses, Dinsmore said, was never as widespread as most people believed. In 1929, there were 17,000,000 draft horses in America; today, there are 15,500,000. The association has adopted a slogan: "Use more pasture for horses—and reduce the surplus of grain."

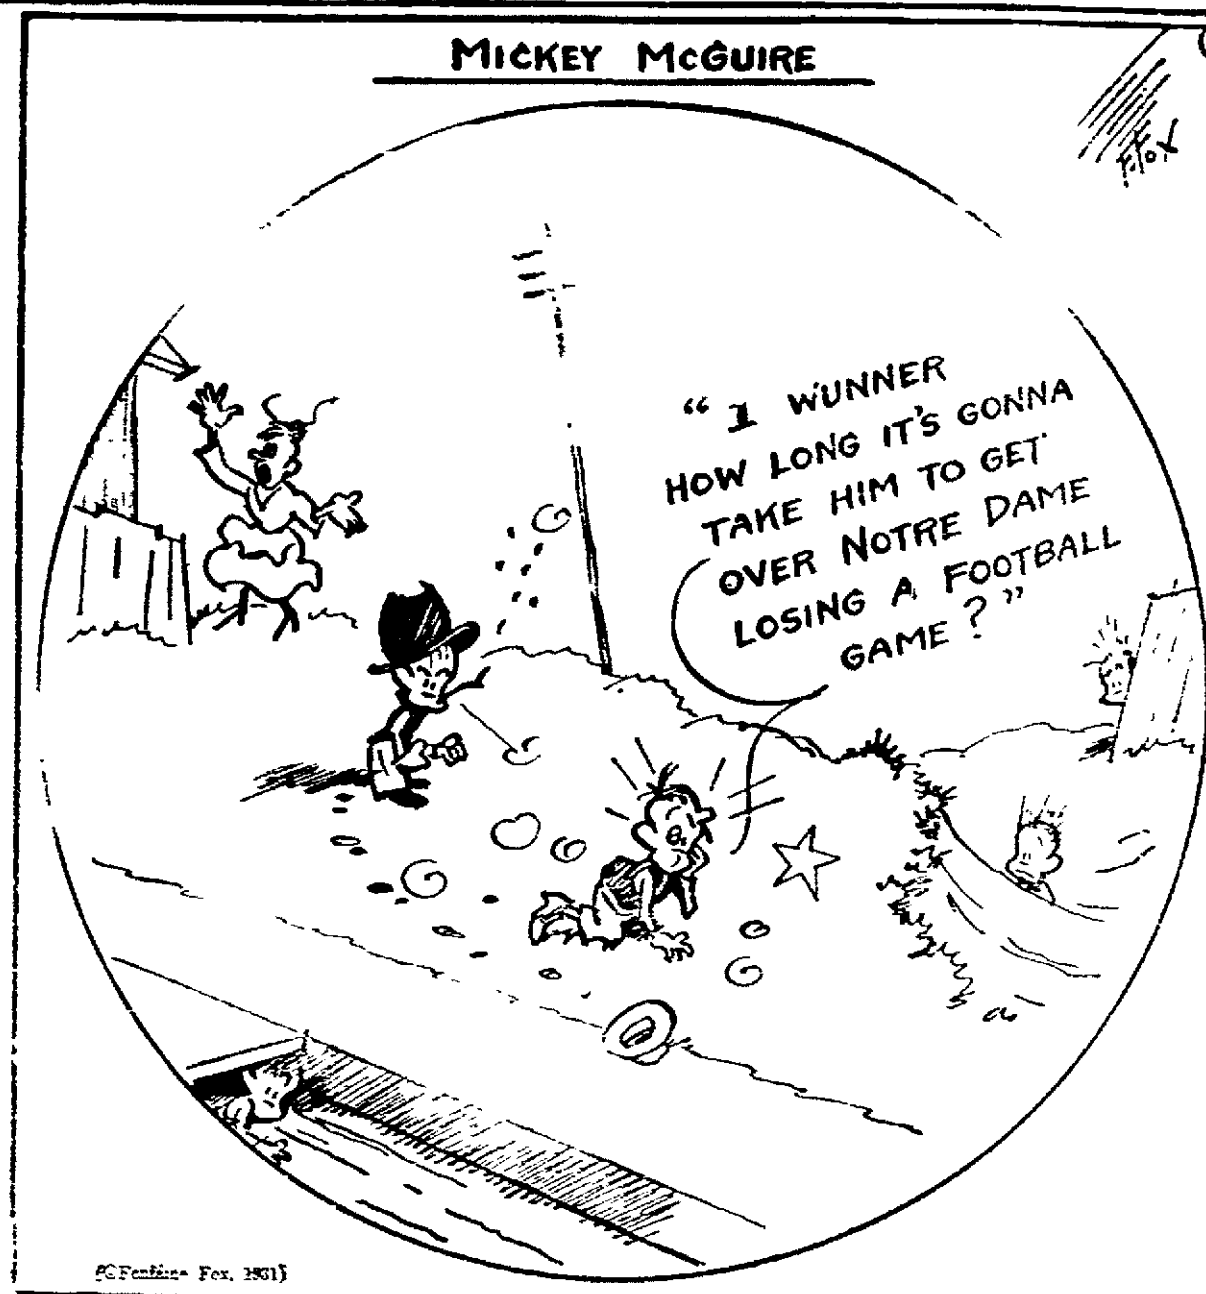

The tremendous increase in horse racing interest and bridle path riding have been other factors, Dinsmore said, in the general renewal of interest in the world of horse breeding.

Another reason many breeders, turned to farming, have spent thousands of dollars in buying up good strains. Thomas Smith, 1831 and his Saffolds, Earl's Brown, Minneapolis, and his Belgians, W. Cameron Forbes, the diplomat, and his ranch-full of Clydesdales in Wyoming.

The Horse Association of America prepared itself for such an increased demand for horse power. It has opened a "problem laboratory" for plowing, discing and harrowing. It has brought physics into play to devise means of getting more power, more acres a day with less horse power.

Make Good Progress In Seal Sale

The return of 750 Christmas seal letters at the close of the first campaign week promises a good start toward the $50,000 goal of the local committee of the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association, according to Mrs. E. V. Werner, local chairman.

Penny seals have gone to more than 100,000 homes and business places in the city and personal sales have been made to the bulk of the downtown district. The committee is confident that the campaign will be successful. The seals will be placed in several public places this week as part of a school week campaign. Mrs. Werner said the committee will be glad to accept any seals that may be sent to the local office.

Charleston, W. V. Police will conduct a drive to collect seals of the campaign. The drive was led by Police Chief J. H. Gilbert, and the seals were placed in the city. The campaign is a part of a national drive to raise money for the fight against tuberculosis.

DON'T GAMBLE WITH WEATHER . . . USE EVEREADY PRESTONE

ANGER TONIGHT!

Protect your car . . . but don't take chances with a "boil-away" anti-freeze

DON'T let your car freeze tonight. For cars are going to freeze . . . some of them caught unprepared . . . others whose owners took a chance with an "anti-freeze" that boiled off and didn't last until now, when it's needed. Eveready Prestone would have saved them!

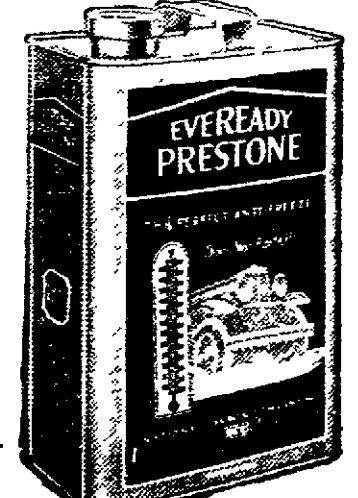

Experienced motorists know how costly it can be to gamble with makeshift products . . . and they depend on an anti-freeze that stays on the job through heat and cold alike, gives sure, permanent protection. More than a million and a half car owners, last year, used Eveready Prestone, and were repaid with lasting peace-of-mind.

The new Eveready Prestone, improved and perfected, gives added safety. It retards the formation of rust in the cooling-system. It has less tendency to leak than water. It won't evaporate or overheat your motor, even in summery weather. And it won't let your car freeze, however low the temperature drops. It has been accepted by leading car manufacturers and automotive engineers.

Eveready Prestone is economical. Because it is concentrated, less of it is needed than with ordinary anti-freezes. And a single supply makes you safe for the winter. No constant testing! No refilling! Don't be misled by cost per gallon. Figure the cost per season.

Right now, you need an anti-freeze! But this cold-snap may pass, and be followed with a thaw. You need an anti-freeze that will protect you now, and live through the warm days coming to safeguard you later on. One that gives lasting protection. Eveready Prestone!

Go to your dealer or garage-man. Have him clean and tighten your cooling-system, then give you all-winter safety with the new, improved Eveready Prestone.

NOTE: The difference between the operation of Eveready Prestone and alcohol is simple and easily understood. When the engine is operating at an efficient temperature and the cooling mixture is alcohol and water, the alcohol boils off and the water remains. The alcohol must then be replaced. When the cooling mixture is Eveready Prestone and water, the water evaporates and the Eveready Prestone remains. Only the water must then be replaced.

Cedarholm To Preach At Church

THE Rev. Anton Cedarholm, Chicago, who conducted a series of meetings at the Baptist church last April will return to preach at 8 o'clock Monday night at the church. This will be his only service in Appleton, as he is on his way to Superior to conduct a campaign there. He has been holding a union campaign in Chicago. Mr. Cedarholm will sing also at the service Monday night.

Mrs. F. J. Cooney, 123 S. Douglas-st. will entertain the St. Grenfell Mission of the church at a Christmas party at 7:30 Tuesday night at her home. A report will be given on the Christmas bazaar and plans will be made for January activities. There will be a Christmas program on the origin of the feast and the customs of observing it in the various countries. The direction of Mrs. Roy Harrington, Mrs. Frank Helms, 111 N. Morrison-st., Ray Dawson, Mrs. George G. Carls and Mrs. Henry G. Carls will be sung and gifts will be exchanged.

Officers of Sacred Heart society of Sacred Heart church were elected for 1932 at the meeting Sunday afternoon at the parish hall. They are: Robert F. McGowan, president; L. J. Sommers, vice president; Frank Schmitt, financial secretary; Arthur Stumpf, recording secretary; Joseph Hopfensperger, treasurer; Joseph Van Roy, trustee; and Rev. F. L. Ruessmann, spiritual director. Installation will be held the first Sunday in January.

The Women's Home Missionary society of the Methodist church will meet for a devotional and business session at 4:30 Tuesday afternoon in the junior room of the church. The Christmas missionary tea will be served at 6 o'clock.

A pageant, "Followers of the Star," will be presented at 7 o'clock at the church. Gifts for the Sages-Brown Orphanage will be brought to the evening meeting.

Plans for Christmas activities were discussed by the True Blue Sunday school class of First Baptist church at a meeting Friday night in the church parlors. Mildred Eads was appointed chairman of a Christmas charity party to be given for needy children Dec. 22 in the recreation hall. Games will be played and Santa Claus will visit the children.

Third Annual Charity Ball This Month

THE King's Daughters of Appleton will hold their third annual charity ball on Tuesday evening, Dec. 29, at Cinderella ballroom. The use of the ballroom has been donated by Charles Maloney as in previous years. Dancing will take place from 9 to 12 o'clock.

Casper Reda and his orchestra, direct from To's Oriental room in Milwaukee, have been secured to provide the music. This orchestra has been playing at To's for the past eight months and broadcasts daily.

Much of the expense connected with the ball has been reduced this year, and services have been donated by persons interested in the work of the King's Daughters to guarantee the success of the venture.

The committee in charge includes Mrs. Paul Scallon, chairman; Mrs. Joseph Marston, Mrs. George Morry, Mrs. Arthur Schell, Mrs. Myron T. Ray, Appleton, and Mrs. J. D. Young, Neenah.

State Moose To Convene Next July

THE state convention of Loyal Order of Moose will be held July 15, 16 and 17 at Beaver Dam, according to announcement made at the state meeting which was held Sunday at Beaver Dam. The president and secretary of the Beaver Dam Chamber of Commerce met with the lodge members of that city and representatives from other lodges in the state Sunday. Headquarters for the convention will be the Hotel Rogers. Earl W. Bates and E. E. Cahill were the Appleton representatives present.

A state convention committee was appointed consisting of three members of the Beaver Dam lodge, and James Gernguth, Milwaukee; Frank Barnhardt, Cudahy; and past state president, Earl W. Bates, Appleton, is included in the latter group. Money was appropriated for prizes, and cups to be awarded for best team and band competitions. A Wisconsin State Legion association was formed temporarily to act as a clearing house for the various lodges of the state to set the dates for their treks.

A dinner was served at noon at Hotel Rogers.

HOLD FORMAL OPENING ON NEW GROCERY STORE

Formal opening of the new Van Handel grocery store at 515 E. Summer-st. was held Saturday. The store was purchased last Friday by Joseph C. Van Handel from Mrs. George Emerich. The building was remodeled and new fixtures were installed. Van Handel has been in the grocery business for approximately 20 years. For the past seven years he was in the employ of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co.

When you see that a child is beginning a great many things and finishing none, check up. Limit the activities to those possible of completion. Help and encourage the child to carry through. There is always a place for discouragement when no progress is made. Carry the child over that and lend a hand if it is necessary. Help him reach the finish.

Don't ask for perfection and high polish. Be satisfied if the thing is done. Each finished task adds power.

IT'S JUST about time for Mother to mix and stir the mysterious batter that goes into the Christmas cake... to cut and plan funny little Christmas cookies and all sorts of tidbits for family sweet tidbits. This is where the APPLETON PURE MILK CO. comes in, right at the moment, because every housewife knows how much good, sweet milk means to the success of cooking. A quick trip through the dairy this last week certainly proved to me the quality and healthfulness of Appleton Pure Milk with special emphasis on their slogan "Pure." Milk dishes for the kiddies in this cold weather is an awfully good way to keep colds away, you know.

OH, I FOUND the most darling things at IDEAL PHOTO and GIFT SHOP, but I'll stress the Dresden china figurines because they won my heart. Dainty little figures in old fashioned costumes that come in pairs. You know, Milady and her lord seated in conversation or the lord and his beautiful china dame accompanying in a minute, simply made for a charming nook. You know, one could put the figures on a mirror, plaque, some party, and then have the delicate china candy or nut baskets at each place. These are terribly cunning. As for parties this place abounds with tricky candy dishes with notches for place cards.

Heavens, if the crowds get anything thicker downtown during this fever of Christmas shopping I can't be responsible for what might happen to a lone shopper's columnist. Snooping is over so rough harbor because folks go and buy things just as one's ready to tell you all about them.

Children grow tired of what they are doing before the finish. This is particularly true if the project is long drawn out. They lay the thing aside, go off and forget all about it, and start another. Sometimes this is not the very best thing that might happen.

Little children who begin to dig a hole down to the heart of the earth must lay their shovels down before they reach the end of their job. If we are wise we arrange to have them feel they completed the dig. Let them know that a tunnel of their own is much better or that for the dog's dust bath is more useful. Let them feel they accomplished something so they are not left with a feeling of unfinished business in their minds.

Try always to have the children attack something that it is possible for them to carry through. If it is a complicated matter, and they have set their hearts upon it, such as opening a theatre and performing a play to an audience, help them to organize their work before they begin that they will need the help of group people and of many of their friends, and they will have a saner point of view and do a better and a completed job.

The most serious phases of this difficulty are those that have to do with the older boys and girls of high school age. When you find a notebook with a few pages written down, when you find knitting half done, maps half drawn, odds and ends of unfinished work all over the place, it is time to take stock of what the child is doing.

Sometimes the high school pupil's time is so filled up with various interests that he really has not the time to finish one job before he starts the next. That makes for mental confusion. There is much stirring of the pot and little sauce for all the pain.

To get the best use out of an experience we must complete it. We have to see the end of things if we are to have any satisfaction from them. We must know the feeling of accomplishment of fitness that comes when a job has been well finished. The means of education that we have to use. Thoroughness, completeness, finished results have real values for children as well as grown-ups. It is not for nothing that we read on the monuments of public works, "Begun this day and year, finished this day and year." There is a triumph of spirit in ending a job well.

COLLEGE CHOIR ON PROGRAM AT VESPER SERVICE

Singing with perfect balance and a blending of voices that bespoke months of steady training, the A Cappella choir of Lawrence college made its first public appearance at the year at the vesper services at the Methodist church Sunday afternoon. The performance was directed by Dean Carl J. Waterman of

The Story of Sue

MARGERY HALE
© 1931 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

S UDDENLY Sue had a reckless idea. She turned to Corinne. "Jack's car is here, too, you know. We were going in yours and pick him up later. Why don't you all go on? We'll follow. It won't be more than a minute."

"All right. See you later," Corinne was gone. Someone asked Sue to dance. She smiled and swung into the rhythm of the waltz. But she kept wondering what Joe Dexter and Jack were talking. Where they were. If she could be provocative in the moonlight. If she were subtle or reckless. Some place beyond the long glass doors....

"It's warm in here, isn't it?" the man with whom she was dancing was saying. "Let's get some air."

Sue knew that she answered. That she was glad that he had made this suggestion so she didn't have to. She stepped on to the terrace. The black witchery of the trees seemed ghostly. The moon looked thin and old. Summer was dead. Buried. It was fall. Dreams were ashes. And all because Jack had gone through a door with a girl he had known all his life.

Two black silhouettes were leaning against the balustrade beyond. One tall. One small and slender. Corinne and Joe Dexter. Sue didn't know. It didn't matter.

The man with whom she had been dancing didn't know who she was. Of that Sue was sure. He had to be kept in his place. And she was too tired to keep anyone in his place.

"What's the matter?" he asked her. "We're alone. Except for Thornton and some dame down there."

"Who is the girl?" Sue asked lightly enough.

"Joe Beckley. Used to be a whole sale man before he went away. Jack wouldn't take her seriously. She meant about as much to him as a mechanical dog. She investigated him out here tonight. He kept saying he had to meet his wife but she wanted to see him about some sort of legal stuff she wants him to handle. So he gave her five minutes. I'd like to meet Thornton's wife. Do you know the girl?"

"I've heard that she's not the party-girl type," Sue answered.

"Whoever she is the old boy is crazy about her," the man went on. "Listen!"

Words carried across the intervening distance. Low, laughing words in a careless voice. Jack's voice.

"I'll look after your legal difficulties later. I have to hunt Sue now."

"Oh Sue won't miss you." The voice was very sure of itself.

"Oh won't she? Well, she had better!" The other words didn't matter. Sue felt warmth flooding her heart again. She had been so foolish to be so sure. Jack was here. Forever and forever. She must never let him know that she had wondered.

"But you are going to kiss me good-by, aren't you, Jack, just for old time's sake?" the girl's voice, a little charming, went on.

"No, Mrs. Malcolm Dexter, I am not. Someone would see and immediately there would be a nice scandal. How could they know that it was a sawdust kiss, without any thriller?"

"Oh, it would be?" the girl drawled again.

"It would. Come on. I'm going."

"Quick Sue slipped aside into a shadowy recess. The man with her surprised, stepped back, too.

"What in the world...." he began. Sue put one hand over his mouth.

NEXT: Another surprise. (Copyright, 1931, NEA Service, Inc.)

MY NEIGHBOR Says —

If you want candles to last half as long again as usual try the following plan: Take each candle by the wick and give it a good coating of white varnish. Then put the candles away for a day or two to harden. The varnish prevents the grease from running down and so preserves the life of the candle.

To keep out the cold air, use discarded paper patterns twisted and tucked in cracks around windows and unused winter doors with a putty knife or dull-bladed knife.

It is a good plan to dip brooms in very hot soap suds once a week. This toughens the bristles and the brooms not only last longer, but also sweep better than if they were kept perfectly dry.

Use a clothespin to untangle a fringed mop. It takes little time and mop will be as fluffy as when new.

All green vegetables, except spinach, should be cooked with the lid off the saucepan.

Diagonal Close

BY ANNEBELLE WORTHINGTON

A particular striking model with jacket-like bodice gives the figure charming slimmness through its wrap-around diagonal closing.

Buttons are its only adornment. The straight line of the skirt with low placed plaits proves extremely desirable for smart day wear.

And it's simplicity itself to make it.

The original was soft tweed-like woolen in black and white and shiny finished Persian-red bone buttons.

Another youthful scheme is vivid green diagonal woolen with brass buttons and brown suede belt.

WE WOMEN

By Virginia Vane

FUTURE HAPPINESS MAY COMPENSATE FOR PRESENT MISERY

Dear Virginia Vane: My husband has been dead for three years and I have to live with my mother, in order to give my two children a home. All my life my mother has been unkind to me, and has seemed jealous of any happiness I have had. Now she makes my life unbearable and never seems to appreciate the fact that I do every bit of the housework, sparing her a good deal of labor. My brother is young and wants to get married but says that he will help me in any way possible to get away from my present circumstances. I have a small pension but not enough to live on.

DISCOURAGED WIDOW

This is the sort of situation from which there seems to be no escape. Circumstances seem to have trapped you completely so that life stretches before you an endless succession of dreary years full of injustice and ill-treatment.

Fortunately life is full of surprises, and often exits are supplied to us when we believe ourselves hopelessly imprisoned for the rest of our days.

The thing you've got to do is to change your mental attitude and I admit that isn't any too easy. But there is this much to be said for your situation—you have two children whom you love and who are anyway given a roof over their heads and food to eat so long as you put up with the existing state of things. That, in spite of all the misery you undergo, is infinitely better than having to fight downright poverty and hunger.

Those children will grow up and be supporting before many years have passed, and then your position will be entirely different. With your pen and their help you will be able to live your own life. It's true that time seems a long way off, but it's something to work for—something to take your mind off the long dull interim.

You say in another part of your letter that your mother constantly scolds you, tries to make life hard—perhaps by complaining and accusing you of various crimes you have not committed. If you could learn to shut yourself to this sort of criticism, and to concentrate on the main purpose of your life—that of giving your children a good start in life—you would make things easier for yourself.

Don't feel hopeless and helpless. There is something for you to look forward to. Probably it would not be wise for you to accept help from your brother if he is on the verge of getting married. He couldn't arrange for a permanent relief, and you would feel uncomfortable about interfering with his matrimonial plans. But you know that you have a friend in him and that when he is able to help in some material way, he'll do so.

Don't brood on the overwhelming number of annoyances and difficulties which beset your path. If you can gain some tranquility by working steadily for the future you may rob the present situation of half its bitterness. Remember you owe it to your children to make the best of this bad job—so that their young lives won't be clouded with your unhappiness. Go back to your unhappiness. Go back to your unhappiness.

WORRIED ONE—You don't see the causes of your trouble so it is difficult to know whether or not you and your husband could come together again to make a success of life—since the fundamental differences which separate two people do change.

But it will be necessary to have more details of your problem before being able to offer intelligent advice.

LARGE PORES ARE STIMULUS TO BLACKHEADS

BY ALICIA HART

Blackheads are one of the most trying of all beauty enemies. The worst thing about blackheads is that they often break out on the face and neck, and are a good enough cause of worry.

Using soap and water is one of the least effective ways of dealing with the face and neck. The pores of the face and neck are the pores of the face and neck, and you have those blemishes that are a worry to many women.

Blackheads come from large pores which often are the result of a too oily skin. The constant secretion of oil enlarges the pores. Becoming large and somewhat lax in their contraction, they do not force out the dirt particles that collect in them.

Two things should be done to rid your face of blackheads. First, begin a thorough treatment for them. Steam your face, use a sterilized needle to prick out the blackheads, sterilize the pore and use an astringent to close it. Then, night and morning, cleanse your skin thoroughly, never letting a single powder puff or any other soiled thing touch it. Use cleansing fluids instead of cream, wherever possible, and use plenty of astringents. Pat on cold water and stimulate your skin into better circulation.

In addition, watch your diet. You already live too much fat secretion which means you probably are eating too fatty foods. Try fresh vegetables, plenty of fruits, only lean meat and no butter, cream or other desserts for a while. This treatment should do much to clear your face.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial catarrh, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Double Windup Features Legion's Amateur Program Tomorrow

HAROLD COTTER AND HANS AHL ARE REMATCHED

Hank Rassmussen Meets Lyle Drake; Stark-Heinritz Go Is "Off"

THE CARD
Hank Rassmussen, Appleton vs. Lyle Drake, Waupun.
Harold Cotter, Kaukauna vs. Leo Champeau, De Pere vs. Bob Worthington, Fond du Lac.
Lyle Drake, Manitowish vs. Art Van Ess, Green Bay.
Art West, Appleton vs. Bobby Brown, Waupun.
Sparky Ahl, Oshkosh vs. Chuck Chenierich, Manitowish.

APPLETON and Fox River valley amateur fight fans will pay tribute to charity Tuesday night when they gather at Armory G. for the monthly fight card promoted by Omer Johnston post of the American Legion.

Six fights have been entered for the evening. Seven originally were on the boards but the seventh, that sensational go between Ray "Tiger" Stark and Chet "Knock 'em Dead" Heinritz, has been placed on the shelf to be resurrected at some later date.

Commission Says "No"
The two boys were supposed to fight for the super heavyweight championship of the city, each tipping the beams at something like 230 pounds. But the Wisconsin state fight commission looked at the size of the two dreadnaughts and then the supports under the armory floor, smiled its best smile and said, "No boys, we can't let them go through with the card. Someone's liable to get hurt, or the armory collapsed. You know we must respect the aged-army, not fighters."

So that's that, and no small amount of disappointment will be noted when this bit of news gets on the street.

Tomorrow's card will feature the best fights Matchmaker H. W. Miller of the legion post could arrange. And become two of the fights are expected to be so good they deserve places as head liners or windups, the post has arranged the bill as a double windup card.

Rassmussen of Appleton and Lyle Drake of Waupun, who indulged in a merry battle here several weeks ago probably will show in the last fight of the evening. They are two clever boxers, like to mix freely and if they perform as they did sometime ago will send the fans home very much pleased.

Ahl, Cotter Rematched
Harold Cotter, Kaukauna veteran and Hans Ahl, Oshkosh, are scheduled to perform in the fifth bout of the evening, the match being arranged by popular request.

A few weeks ago the two boys met at the armory and staged a fair exhibition during the first two rounds. With Cotter leading by a neat margin, the boys started the third frame. Hardly had the round opened when Ahl straightened Cotter with a short left and knocked him cold with a terrific right to the jaw.

It was one of the most sensational knockouts ever hung up in an Appleton ring and earned the boys another chance to show here.

The remaining four fights of the evening also are expected to be real battles with action every minute of the way.

Leo Champeau rugged DePere youngster meets Bob Worthington, armed, long leashed boxer from Fond du Lac. Lyle Drake, hard hitting, varying, tearing fighter from Manitowish will also get with Art Van Ess, Green Bay, another top all class fighter.

Art West On Card
Art West, Appleton's contribution to the 1932 windup class and possessed of a wicked punch in his right hand will meet Bobby Brown, Waupun. He, young man, the curtain raiser will show Sparky Ahl, Oshkosh, brother of Hans, matching his boxing skill against the punches of Chuck Chenierich, Manitowish.

Battling proceeds of the bouts will be donated to charity. Judge Fred V. Hennrich, chairman of the city's two relief organizations, will act as the announcer. Mayor Gerald J. will help ring the danger and watch the watch as timer.

The card has stirred up much interest and a record crowd probably will attend. Seats are on sale at the armory in the city. The first bout will go on the boards at 8:30 and chances are that veteran official, Walter Houshoun, Milwaukee, will be the referee in the ring.

Bierman, whose eleven won the right to meet Southern California in the annual "Rose Bowl" game at Pasadena, Calif., New Year's day, was expected to make suggestions concerning his staff of assistants at Minnesota.

Chaff 'n Chatter

By Gordon R. McIntyre

A FOOTBALL question that causes a lot of arguments is whether the coach makes the player or the player makes the coach. We've always contended the player, or rather, the material, makes the coach. And here's a few paragraphs from one of Lawrence Perry's copyright yarns and Mr. Perry, as you probably know is one of the country's best football experts.

"Now there are certain universities which in the past two or three years have been credited with stiffening their curriculum, scrutinizing scholarship awards and maintaining a rather rigid attitude in the matter of admissions. Stanford on the west coast is one. Penn State in the Alleghenies is another. Still another is Georgia Tech in the south, with Princeton in the east. In every case there has been a marked decline in football. Two of these institutions have a game coaches and the same systems under which they gained places among the football leaders of the nation. Princeton lost Bill Roper but his staff remained.

"And it is interesting to note that not alone in football but in all major sports these universities are less formidable than they used to be. In these sports there has been no change in coaching staffs. A study of Princeton's showing in recent years in rowing, track, baseball, hockey, basketball would reveal no advantage over football so far as championships are concerned. All of which would seem to indicate that material makes the coach rather than the reverse.

"Knute Rockne is spoken of as the man who made Notre Dame football. He really did it. It may be news to many, but the fact is that of the 14 undefeated Notre Dame eleven in 42 seasons at South Bend, nine were produced before Rockne became head coach and five under Knute's administration.

"The first nine clean slate years were 1893, 1892, 1893, 1903, 1907, 1909, 1911, 1912, 1913. So it may be assumed that Rockne's predecessors at South Bend found material there not altogether unsuited to the game of football just as Rockne did.

"Howard Jones' Take the 2 years in which he coached at Yale, 1909 and 1913. His record in 1909 was ten games won and none lost or tied, that eleven played Carroll College, Ford Kippertich, Steve Philbin and Ted Coy. Every one of these players stood out head and shoulders above all men throughout the country playing the same position.

"In Jones' eight years at Iowa his success precisely reflected the quality of his material. His two great years at Iowa, 1921-1922, were years of the great Auburn, Devine, Locke, Slater and the rest. His greatest percentages of success have come in his seven years at Southern California, where the quality of material reflects the dreams of any coach.

The fact is that coaches do not make football players. It is rare enough when they develop them. They go into them and shape them and fit them into a scheme—provided they can be fitted. If not, and the player is sufficiently important, they use a scheme to fit him. A natural athlete, one who reacts brilliantly to situations, whose reflexes are lightning, whose intuitions are keenly accurate, is not necessarily outstanding in the class room. Usually he is not.

Otherwise the brilliant scholastic intellect would express itself as ably upon the field of competitive play as in the recitation hall. And there would be no problem for any coach.

MAJORS TO MEET
The Cubs' last big effort to trade or sell Wilson will be made during the annual meetings of the major leagues in Chicago tomorrow, Wednesday and Thursday.

The plan of having both major leagues meet in Chicago is a departure from previous years. The National league has always provided that the club owners hold their annual session in New York, but at the request of Kenesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of baseball, the routine has been altered.

At least two items are due for consideration. Radio broadcasting of games will be discussed by both leagues, while the American League may decide to change the specifications of the baseball. The radio question especially may develop a hot argument.

The minor circuit may decide to adopt the same style of ball as used in the National league last season.

SOX MAKE 2 TRADES
The Chicago White Sox, which stole the show at the minor league meeting at West Baden, Ind., last week, by accomplishing two big trades, are still in action and are ready to go on the market. The Yankees were said to be in the market for another pitcher and Manager Joe McCarthy has cast covetous glances at Vic Frazier, young White Sox right-hander. The Sox are not willing to part with Frazier, but Bump Hadley, obtained last week in the trade which sent Carl Reynolds to Washington, may be used in a swap with the Yankees.

The Cubs' whether or not Wilson is sold or traded after another season, and President Wrigley has plenty of cash ready with which to go after a Christ Klein or a Paul Wagner.

The leagues will hold their own meetings Tuesday and Wednesday and will meet together Friday and Saturday.

BIG TEN CAGE TEAMS SWINGING INTO ACTION

Chicago — (AP)—Northwestern, the Big Ten's defending basketball champion, will open its 1932-33 campaign tonight against Bradley college of Peoria, Ill., tonight.

Bradley was good enough to trim Iowa 21 to 17, at Iowa City last Saturday night, and will afford the Wildcats a vigorous testing.

Minnesota also opened its practice season Saturday night with a 21 to 15 victory over the North Dakota Aggies.

Michigan also will open tonight, meeting Western State teachers of Kalamazoo, Mich. Ohio State will start tomorrow night, against Ohio State, and on Friday, Dr. W. E. Meanyville's latest Wisconsin team will meet Brigham Young university of Salt Lake City, at Madison.

DORRIS DENIES HE VISITED AT MADISON

Detroit, Mich. — (AP)—Coach Charles E. Dorris, of the University of Detroit, who had been reported in Madison, recently, conferring about a University of Wisconsin football coaching job, returned to Detroit yesterday and denied he was even considering the position. He said he had not been near Madison and that he and Mrs. Dorris had been visiting in the east.

APPLETON CAGERS RATE HIGH GRADES REPORTS REVEAL

Positive proof that athletes are not always poor in their studies, "dumb" scholastically, or possessed with strong backs and weak brains is given in the standing of 10 members of the Appleton high school cage squad for the last six weeks' period, grades that were compiled while nearly all the boys were indulging in hard practices and several in football.

One of the cagers has five A's for his six weeks period; another has A, B, C, C, and still another A, B, C, C. The squad picked up eight A grades, 15 B grades and 19 C grades.

Members of the squad whose grades made the record are Jim Murphy, Emmett Mortell, Bill Peotter, Bobby Rule, Joe Verrier, Ken Priebe, Howard Bowiby, Jack Powers, George Rooney and Dave Dietrich.

United Cigar team and the Bears joined with the Pure Milks and Co. D, as leaders in the Industrial basketball league of the Y. M. C. A. Saturday night as the first week's schedule was completed.

The United Cigars rallied behind R. Reetz who scored seven field goals in the first half and five in the second half to win from the Independents 35 and 12. The count at the end of the first half was 23 and 4 for the eventual winners. Welbes was high scorer for the Independents with four buckets.

The Bears divided shooting honors pretty evenly as they wallowed the Miller Cords 31 and 17. At half time the count was 14 and 7 for the Bears who connected for seven field goals in the first half and five in the second half. The Bears continued their scoring rampage in the last half to win easily.

"HUNK" ANDERSON TO VISIT MAYO CLINIC

South Bend, Ind. — (AP)—As soon as he has tied up all the loose ends of Notre Dame's 1931-32 basketball season, Coach Hunk Anderson will go to the Mayo Brothers' clinic at Rochester, Minn., for a checkup.

Anderson spent many weeks at the clinic early this year, suffering first with spinal meningitis and later with appendicitis. He plans to get a thorough overhauling before another illness has a chance to attack him.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

PRINCETON suffered what might be called a disastrous season in 1913, 1914 and 1915 Yale wasn't beating anybody, either.

Notre Dame wasn't so hot either three years ago when the Ramblers didn't ramble at all in four of the season's games.

Even Knute Rockne couldn't win those four.

And how about Northwestern as recently as four years ago?

In 1927 Illinois, Purdue, Missouri and Indiana made the Purple Wildcats look like very tame tallees indeed.

And who doesn't remember when Georgia Tech was very tough?

GREEN BAY AND SPARTANS MAY CLASH SUNDAY

Portsmouth Claims Game Was Arranged; Bays Lose to Bears

NEW YORK — (AP)—The National Professional Football league championship for 1931 hinges upon a game which may or may not be played next Sunday between the Green Bay Packers and the Portsmouth Spartans.

L. H. Joanness, president of Green Bay club claims that the game was never scheduled and that his team already had won the title. But Harry Snyder, president of the Spartans, says the game was tentatively scheduled, contingent upon the weather, had been counting on it to give the Packers a chance to share the crown. Under league rules, a game tentatively scheduled may be cancelled by either of the clubs involved.

Green Bay, the defending champion, accepted a 7-6 beating from the Chicago Bears in Chicago yesterday and nearly led the Spartans by only one game. The Wisconsin outfit, by a win or a tie, will clinch the championship again. Portsmouth must win to gain a half share in the crown.

Bears Score on Pass
The Bears' victory over Green Bay yesterday really was achieved on the third play of the game. Lewellyn, crack Green Bay back, passer on the first play, fired a 40 yard kick and Brumbaugh intercepted for the Bears the Packer 35 yard line and ran 17 yards. On the next play Red Green passed to Litzmeyer for a touchdown. Tackwell kicked the point early in the second quarter. The Packers scored on a pass from Lewellyn to Blood. Red Dunn went into the game to kick the all-important point but failed.

Portsmouth, tuning up for the Green Bay game, played an exhibition game against the Columbus Taxis and ran up a 101 to 7 count.

GIANTS WHIP DODGERS
New York, — (AP)—The New York Giants whipped the Brooklyn Dodgers, 19 to 6, before a crowd of 25,000, yesterday in the closing game of the National Professional Football league season for both teams.

Henry Friedman tossed a pass to Faherty who dashed 68 yards for a giant touchdown in the first period. Moran played kicked the extra point. New York scored again in the second period when Moran took a pass from Friedman on Brooklyn's five yard line and suggested across the line.

Brooklyn's tally came in the third stanza when McBride broke loose out of scrimmage and ran 65 yards for a touchdown. Kitzmiller closed the scoring for the day in the fourth period when he bucked the Brooklyn line for three yards and a touchdown.

Saturday's Football Stars

Batty Feather and Herb Brackett, Tennessee—Their long runs beat New York university, 13-0.

Don Zimmerman, Tulane—His sensational passing accounted for three touchdowns against Washington School of Hartford, Conn.

Gus Shaver and Orville Mohler, Southern California—Ran through Washington's defense for three touchdowns apiece.

Ray Poppleman, Maryland—Sprung 31, 51 and 56 yards to score three touchdowns against Western Maryland.

Lou Kirk, Navy—Led Navy's attack against Penn and tossed winning pass to Tschirgi.

The Southern California-Notre Dame football game was the first in years in which the opponents used more players than the Ramblers, U. S. C. using 27, Notre Dame 26.

State Bowling Tournament At Kenosha, Jan. 22-Feb. 29

BY WM. F. FENSKE
HE campaign for the great Wisconsin state bowling tournament to be held at Kenosha, Jan. 22 to Feb. 29 now is underway and from response to appeals we estimate the tournament will be one of the greatest the State has had during the past 30 years.

The promoters at Kenosha are trying to make this, the greatest of the past years, the enthusiasm displayed as well as the energy they are putting into the entry campaign shows they are confident of securing the 500 teams they boasted about when they received the tournament at the spring meeting of the Wisconsin State Bowling Association.

Kenosha had a state tournament some 15 years ago and made good with a record entry. The Wisconsin State Bowling Association record for state tournaments was established at Kenosha when the Schroeder & Daly team of Milwaukee closed in high five men score of 3083 which stood until topped by the Rexola Cigars with a record score of 3201.

The entry will be over 1,000 teams and this means a splendid pot of gold to be distributed among the bowlers of Wisconsin. This incentive of course has been the principal idea of the tournament as appreciation by all bowlers is the "get-together" goodfellowship which means renewal of old friendships.

The entries will close Jan. 10. The teams which have an inclination to make the trip to the state tournament should not wait until it is too late to secure good dates. Reservations are coming in fast with the result that before Christmas it is safe to say that every weekend date will be completely filled.

Let us have your reservation or your entry to make sure you are protected. Write for information and literature to the headquarters of the Wisconsin State Bowling Association, City Bank Building, Milwaukee.

Sectional Grid Champs All Have Been Crowned

BY HERBERT W. BARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK — (AP)—Sectional title-holders have been crowned in all eight of the country's major football groups or conferences and the prize award of all, the mythical national championship, hangs on the New Year's day clash between Tulane and Southern California in the rose bowl, Jan. 1.

Four sectional championships of 1930 repeated this year, either outright or partially. Tulane, which shared the Southern conference crown with Alabama a year ago, finished all alone at the top this year.

In the slim schedule for this week two games stand out. Army and Navy will renew their ancient rivalry in the Yankee Stadium here Saturday for the benefit of the unemployed. At Los Angeles Southern California making its last stand before the Rose bowl game, will tackle the powerful Georgia Bulldogs.

There are four other attractions this week, all for charity. At New York Wednesday, Cornell, Penn. Princeton and Columbia will compete in an elimination tournament similar to that in which Yale emerged the victor over Brown, Holy Cross and Dartmouth last week. On Saturday at Washington, stars of the Alabama teams of 1930 and previous years will play three 20 minute "games" against Georgetown, George Washington and Catholic University. The University of Miami (Fla.) will meet Alabama State Teachers at Miami Friday and Oklahoma will tackle Tulsa at Tulsa Saturday.

The Indians each won their game in the Older Boy league of the Y. M. C. A. boys' department Saturday afternoon. Only two games are played on Saturdays, there being three classes on Tuesdays.

The Specials made but one more field goal than the Merchants but they were clever enough to make good use of free throws with five points via that route compared to one for the Merchants. The count at the end of the first half was 8 and 5 for the Specials.

Valley Sports, who showed themselves the midge aggregation of the league dropped a 21 and 14 game to the Indians. Play in the first half was comparatively close with the count 13 and 9 at the rest period. In the second half the Indians clicked four field goals and the Sports two and a free throw. Grunert, Indian forward, had five field goals for the afternoon.

BOXERS SHOW FOR CHRISTMAS FUND

Battalino and Lou Brouillard to Box at Garden Friday Night

New York — (AP)—Christmas fund shows in New York and Cleveland will benefit this week by the services of two champions, Battalino and Brouillard of Worcester, Mass.

Battalino, king of the featherweights, will tangle with Al Singer, former lightweight champion, in a ten round bout at catchweights in Madison Square Garden Friday night. Brouillard also will leave his welterweight title at home when he steps into the ring against Paul Pirone of Cleveland in a ten-rounder at Cleveland, Friday night.

The Cleveland show will be topped by a heavyweight duel between Ernie Simms of Boston and Frankie Simms of Cleveland.

Another champion, Midget Wolgast of Philadelphia, recognized in some states as flyweight titleholder will swing into action at San Francisco Friday night, meeting Canto Robbleto of Pasadena in a ten-round title fray.

One of the most interesting festive carnivals of the week will take place at Chicago Friday when ten light heavyweights start an elimination tournament designed to produce an outstanding challenger for Maxie Rosenbloom, who has agreed to meet the eventual survivor.

For recreation Bonner Miller, veteran St. Louis golf enthusiast, daily walks around Forest Park, a distance of six miles.

HIGH SCHOOL PREPARES FOR VALLEY OPENER

Orange Eked Out 10 and 6 Victory Saturday at Marshfield

APPLETON high school cagers will start training today for the opening of the Valley conference season Friday night. Appleton will battle East Green Bay in the opener, the scene of the game being the East high gym.

Saturday night the Orange defeated Marshfield in a close, interesting game that featured defensive play. The score was 10 and 6, Appleton getting five field goals and no free throws and Marshfield one field goal and four free throws.

The game saw Appleton leading by a single point, 3 and 3, at the end of the first half. The rest period at the end of the first half found the Orange still out in front by a score of 6 and 4.

Appleton scored another field goal in the third quarter and Marshfield a free throw. The same stunt was repeated in the last half and the game ended 10 and 6 for Appleton. Peotter had one field goal as did Rule and Bowiby. Mortell checked two markers.

The win was the second in two days for the Orange. Wisconsin Rapids having fallen victim Friday night by a count of 18 and 12. Saturday's combination probably failed to click it's best because Bill Peotter, center, injured his trick knee and was kept on the bench thereafter with Mortell playing the pivot position. However, Peotter's injury is not expected to be serious.

The two games this week show the Orange again will have a great defensive combination. Whether the offense holds up remains to be seen in conference competition where the going will be tougher. Last year's team, which incidentally is this year's team, had the best defensive record in the Valley but rated about third offensively.

In other practice games last Friday, Marinette lost to Lourdes high 14 and 0. Shawano high tripped East Green Bay 16 and 15. West high beat St. Norbert 21 and 12, Oshkosh beat Ripon 14 and 9, Sheboygan beat its alumni 25-15, Manitowish smothered Chilton 28 to 10, and Fond du Lac did not play.

Basket by Courtney in Last Minute Gives Appleton Council Win

Father Fitzmaurice council basketball team won the initial game of the season with a 29 to 19 victory over Plymouth. Appleton started the scoring in the first few minutes of play with a basket by Courtney and when Versteegen sunk another home team had a four point lead. Then Lindsey of Plymouth dropped a long shot through the hoop. The score at the half was ten and eight in favor of Appleton.

The second half was close and a battle from start to finish. The lead see-sawed back and forth from one team to the other. With four minutes to go and the score tied at 18 all a free throw by Fitzpatrick

LADY with a PAST

BY HARRIET HENRY

SYNOPSIS: Venice Muir has won acclaim in New York society, after years of being considered dull, because of a fictitious, intriguing reputation which she cultivated while abroad. The one man and cares for, Drake Farrelly, believes the reputation ill-founded, but real character, and keeps away from her. She meets him unexpectedly.

Chapter 41
THE MILKMAN'S SONG

"O H," Venice cried, "you." Her hand went to the wet strings of hair on her cheeks and she felt her face glowing hot beneath its tingling, icy surface.

"My God, Venice, what have you been doing?" Drake asked. "Battling the elements. I couldn't get a taxi. And I fell down at the corner of Fifth-ave. I must look like a ghoul." "You look like a drowned red fox," Drake said. "Come along. Why are you out alone on a filthy night like this?" "I've been up at Columbia. An English literature course." Her heart was thumping with the quick linking of his arm in hers. He was marching her briskly towards Park Avenue. In her sudden excitement she forgot to think how ridiculous it was after all her planned encounters that she should meet him looking worse than she had probably ever looked in all her life before. "Come in," she said at her apartment entrance. "We must have something hot. You're drenched too." "Sounds excellent. You're wet through, Venice." "But I don't run or fade and my spirit is undaunted." She suddenly felt happy and gay. They raked the fire to a roaring blaze in the living-room and Venice showed him where to find Scotch and soda while she hurried to change her clothes. She put on a filmy, jade negligee without stopping to wonder whether it was proper or not. He was sitting on the floor by the fire with a tall glass in his hand and one near by for her. She sank beside him with a little "Oo-o" of quick pleasure at the warm blaze. "Even my insides are iced," she cried, holding out her hands to the fire. "Take a quick drink. You'll get fit or something." She gulped eagerly. "Oh, Drake, your shoes! Won't you take them off?" "Hardly the thing when calling on Miss Muir." "But look at me." She gave a glance to her chignons and laces and knew a sudden overwhelming embarrassment. She felt wordless and unbearably shy. "You look to me like the Venice who broke the Marquis' heart," he laughed. It was said with no malice, just jocular badinage. Venice forgot her sudden diffidence. She looked bravely into his eyes. "You've avoided me purposely, Drake, haven't you? Why?" He hesitated an instant. "Do you want the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth?" he asked. "Yes, please." "It's difficult." "It's more or less a case of mis-taken identity." "Where do you mean?" "I when I found you on the stairs at the Goadbys' I thought you were a sweet, shy, unhappy sort of girl. I remembered you often when you were abroad and looked forward to your coming home again. Then I ran into you in the Park. You still seemed what I thought and I understood you so well and wanted to get under-neath that shell of yours that was so difficult for you to lift. I seemed to feel there was a pearl there. Then--oh, I don't know, I hesitated." "Go on, Drake." "I met Lola on--" "Go up here! That man! The Goadby's have let me out to the street for a while. I don't belong to the sort of girl you thought you were. I didn't get in with the Venice Muir I'd treasured in my mind. The pearl was only cultured money. It was puzzling. It's disappointing to see a lovely picture and when you look at it again discover that the brush strokes are superficial, the colors hackneyed. Your own mistake. You'd read things into something that wasn't there. That's all." "But it isn't all, really. I am a shy girl. I--I do feel stupid and gauche often." "You're not. Could a shy girl lead a man on to the wrought-iron state where he kills himself when she won't marry him, another man to the point where he becomes her inseparable companion when he has a perfectly good wife at home?" "Oh. Color dyed her cheeks a deeper pomegranate than the fire's painting. "Never mind, Venice. You're somehow nice anyway in spite of it all." There was a pause. She turned to smile slowly at him. "I want to tell you everything," she managed. "About what?" "About me." "Don't. Perhaps you'll be sorry tomorrow." "I'll never be sorry. I've wanted to tell you almost ever since that evening you came to see me. I hired Guy Bryson, the married one, as a refined sort of gigolo." Venice paused. "You did what?" "Yes. I picked him up at the Cafe de la Paix. It's--I always was pathetically stupid and bashful about parties. Just the way I seemed on the Goadbys' stairs. I longed to be popular and I couldn't. I wanted to get out of it all and study things but mother goaded me on. She said social success was the only thing in a woman's life. Then after mother died I determined I'd manufacture a past for myself and come home interesting. There would be something mysterious about me then to intrigue people. I wouldn't matter how dull my conversation was." She paused. His eyes were studying her face as though it was an intricate map. She looked away, her heart heavy. "But--but I had no way to get started. That's where Guy Bryson came in. He introduced me to the Marquis. And the day Rene asked me to marry him he had to pay a certain debt to a woman he loved. I wouldn't marry him and so he couldn't pay her." She stopped. It all seemed hopeless. What else could she do? There was a long silence. She didn't look at him somehow, turning the tall glass between her hands, her eyes on the amber liquid. "Please say something," she finally marveled. "I won't mind." She suddenly heard his gay, infectious chortle. Her glance lifted to fly to his face. His head was thrown back and he was laughing. "You're a darling," he said. "What?" "Dear, silly, unhappy, humorous little Venice Muir." "I'm not." She was almost laughing too. "And the picture really is like the brush strokes aren't superficial or the colors hackneyed?" "I saw the third time in an artificial light," Drake told her. "Oh, Drake," she gasped, her hands extended. "What's the other drink. Take it and my a--" "You bet." "And I have time for dress--" "Columbia. Do you remember I said most cunningly I wouldn't have?" "And you said you'd see me at the Charity Ball just as cunningly? You did see me, didn't you? Well, do you suppose I went?" "To give your sister a big evening of course." She made a little pout. "Why did you say I was a darling? You were so far as you were concerned, Drake?" "Because I loved you so, so--" "Wonderfully much, I'm glad of it, but I don't like it at all." They eagerly turned a page. A Ford's car was parked in the street below. It was a dark car, but it was a Ford. "The driver's a little one up to them. Can this be Lola?" "A humble milkman carries my sentiments exactly," laughed Drake. "A piece of log draped smoldering to the heart. There had almost gone out." "Because I loved you so, so--" "Wonderfully much, I'm glad of it, but I don't like it at all." THE END

BADGER SOLONS WERE DIVIDED INTO 2 GROUPS

Some Congressmen Attend Conferences—Others Stay Away

BY RUBY A. BLACK
Post-Crescent Washington Correspondent

Washington—Wisconsin progressive congressmen were divided into two groups during the closed conferences held during most of the past week by Republicans in the hall of the house of representatives.

Reps. James A. Frear of Hudson and John M. Nelson of Madison did not attend at all. Rep. Frear sat in his office and wrote letters on matters which he helped conduct many years ago, dictated letters, often told news reporters he was "too busy" to see them. Rep. Nelson said he was not feeling well and "took a nap" the day the Republicans selected Rep. Bertrand H. Snell of New York as their choice for speaker, and thus their choice for minority leader. Besides, added Rep. Nelson, while difference did it make whether Rep. Snell or Rep. John Q. Tilson, lately floor leader, was chosen?

But Reps. Gerald J. Boleau of Wausau, George J. Schneider of Appleton, Thomas R. Amle of Elkhorn, and Gardner R. Withrow of La Crosse were there every day. These four Wisconsin Progressives accounted for the votes Rep. Fiorella La Guardia of New York got for the speakership.

Got One Vote
Although Rep. La Guardia was one of those seconding the nomination of Rep. Snell, the fiery independent Republican and one-time Socialist got one vote for speaker on the first ballot, although he had not been formally placed in nomination. That vote was cast by Rep. Schneider.

Rep. Schneider, who had not been nominated either, got three votes for speaker on the first ballot. These votes were cast by Reps. Withrow, Boleau, and Amle, the newly elected progressive congressmen from Wisconsin.

On all the other ballots, Rep. La Guardia got four votes. They were cast by the four Wisconsin Progressives present.

Rep. John C. Schaefer of Milwaukee voted continuously for Rep. Snell. William H. Stafford of Milwaukee, Chester A. King of Watertown, and Hubert H. Peavey of Washburn were not in town.

Despite the fact that Rep. Nelson thinks it was "a toss-up" as between Snell and Tilson, the fact is that Snell is much more receptive to measures of interest to the middle west than is Tilson of Connecticut.

In the first place, Snell is the only easterner who is enthusiastic about the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway so important to Wisconsin, and the only New Yorker not opposing it.

In the second place, but for Snell, the oleomargarine legislation enacted by the last congress at the earnest behest of congressmen from Wisconsin and other dairy states would never have got to the floor for the overwhelming vote it received.

The rules committee, of which Snell was chairman, was two-one against it because of the presence of southern Democrats interested in vegetable-oil butter substitutes and eastern city men interested in cheap butter substituted. But Snell kept fighting until he got a special rule reported under which the bill, placing a 10-cent tax on all butter substitutes that look like butter, whether naturally or artificially colored, was passed by a two-thirds majority.

While Snell, rich, powerful, lumberman - cheesemaker - dairyman - power-developer, has always been counted a dry, he promptly came out giving the prohibition question a vote during the coming session—a step for which the Wisconsin Progressives, excepting Nelson and Frear have been fighting.

The first thing the Republican conference decided to do about liberalizing the rules will deprive Reps. Stafford and Schaefer of Milwaukee of some of the power they have usually exercised on the days when private bills are considered.

Under the old rule, only one objection could prevent the consideration of a private relief bill the first time it came up on the calendar, and three objections could block it the second time—if there ever was a second time. The Republicans decided to change this to two objections on first consideration and five on the second, the Democrats willing.

Rep. Stafford is one of the most constant objectors to such measures, on several occasions preventing the passage of bills introduced by Schaefer and other Wisconsin congressmen.

Rep. Schaefer himself knows many private measures, but is not one as assiduous as Rep. Stafford. The other Wisconsin congressmen have never entered into these discussions, unless one of their own bills is up.

The four Progressives who attended the "conference" constantly emphasized the fact that they were fighting for liberalization of the rules and were retaining the right to vote as they please both on the speakership Monday and on the question of liberalization of the rules, regardless of the decisions made by the Republicans behind closed doors during the past week.

Frank Collier of La Crosse, postmaster of the House of Representatives, who will lose his post to a Democrat, will probably be given a pretty good job as a "minority employee." He would not consider being assistant postmaster. The postmaster, which he has held all during the Republican control of the House, pays $5,000, and the assistant's job pays only $2,500. The majority employees, except for the chief one of the S. K. gets $2,500, and the chief one gets $3,150.

Postmaster Collier has been seriously troubled by an eye affliction during recent weeks, but now believes that his eyes will soon be doing their full duty and causing him no more trouble.

A former University of Wisconsin professor was among a group of men applying for and getting jobs at 45 cents an hour, provided by the District of Columbia unemployment committee. The work was park and playground improvement work.

Feminists gathered here for the convention of the National Woman's Party over the week-end are exhibiting concern over the fact that Gov. Philip F. La Follette has appointed a committee to consider the question of married women in the state's public service.

The feminist leaders insist that women have as much right to employment as men during the depression, that to bar married women is a basic infringement of this right, that under Wisconsin's equal rights law the state has no right to discriminate between men and women married or single, in the public service, and that, furthermore, to deprive married women of public employment would be an action against marriage and would be against public morals and public policy.

They hope, of course, that the governor's committee will find that Wisconsin women are persons, whether married or single, as did the Supreme court of the United States last Monday in holding that Wisconsin has no right to make a husband pay the tax on his wife's separate income, since the Wisconsin wife has the same right as the Wisconsin husband on the Wisconsin mail or express or widow or teacher to her property and earnings.

Under the old rule, only one objection could prevent the consideration of a private relief bill the first time it came up on the calendar, and three objections could block it the second time—if there ever was a second time. The Republicans decided to change this to two objections on first consideration and five on the second, the Democrats willing.

CHICAGOAN ROBBED OF 89 CENTS AND EVERYTHING ELSE

Chicago — (AP)—The difference between Lady Godiva and Thomas Lee of Chicago, is that Lady Godiva had a horse. But let Mr. Lee tell about it.

"The thermometer," he said, "stood at 53. I was going by an alley five blocks from home. Three men with guns stopped me and took my 89 cents. Then one of them said:

"You must think we are in this business for fun. We'll show you we make a profit on every deal."

"Then they took off my overcoat and my suit and my shoes and socks and whatever else I had on and told me to run. It is difficult to explain my state of mind as I dashed from ash barrel to ash barrel, from shadow to shadow, wondering what the robbers would think if they should see me."

CABBAGE GROWERS TO HOLD ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting of the Appleton Cabbage Growers' association is to be held at the courthouse here at 1:30 Thursday afternoon. The growers will discuss plans for the coming year, elect officers, and make plans for purchasing their seed for next year. Present officers are: Phil Bixby, president; Matt Schaefer, secretary; A. A. Myse, William Schneider and Albert Luckie, directors.

One of the features of the meeting will be the showing of motion pictures of the results of using fertilizer on cabbage plots. This will be done by Gus Sell, county agent.

phased that they were fighting for liberalization of the rules and were retaining the right to vote as they please both on the speakership Monday and on the question of liberalization of the rules, regardless of the decisions made by the Republicans behind closed doors during the past week.

Frank Collier of La Crosse, postmaster of the House of Representatives, who will lose his post to a Democrat, will probably be given a pretty good job as a "minority employee." He would not consider being assistant postmaster. The postmaster, which he has held all during the Republican control of the House, pays $5,000, and the assistant's job pays only $2,500. The majority employees, except for the chief one of the S. K. gets $2,500, and the chief one gets $3,150.

Postmaster Collier has been seriously troubled by an eye affliction during recent weeks, but now believes that his eyes will soon be doing their full duty and causing him no more trouble.

A former University of Wisconsin professor was among a group of men applying for and getting jobs at 45 cents an hour, provided by the District of Columbia unemployment committee. The work was park and playground improvement work.

Feminists gathered here for the convention of the National Woman's Party over the week-end are exhibiting concern over the fact that Gov. Philip F. La Follette has appointed a committee to consider the question of married women in the state's public service.

The feminist leaders insist that women have as much right to employment as men during the depression, that to bar married women is a basic infringement of this right, that under Wisconsin's equal rights law the state has no right to discriminate between men and women married or single, in the public service, and that, furthermore, to deprive married women of public employment would be an action against marriage and would be against public morals and public policy.

They hope, of course, that the governor's committee will find that Wisconsin women are persons, whether married or single, as did the Supreme court of the United States last Monday in holding that Wisconsin has no right to make a husband pay the tax on his wife's separate income, since the Wisconsin wife has the same right as the Wisconsin husband on the Wisconsin mail or express or widow or teacher to her property and earnings.

Under the old rule, only one objection could prevent the consideration of a private relief bill the first time it came up on the calendar, and three objections could block it the second time—if there ever was a second time. The Republicans decided to change this to two objections on first consideration and five on the second, the Democrats willing.

Rep. Stafford is one of the most constant objectors to such measures, on several occasions preventing the passage of bills introduced by Schaefer and other Wisconsin congressmen.

Rep. Schaefer himself knows many private measures, but is not one as assiduous as Rep. Stafford. The other Wisconsin congressmen have never entered into these discussions, unless one of their own bills is up.

The four Progressives who attended the "conference" constantly emphasized the fact that they were fighting for liberalization of the rules and were retaining the right to vote as they please both on the speakership Monday and on the question of liberalization of the rules, regardless of the decisions made by the Republicans behind closed doors during the past week.

Social Season Gets Under Full Swing In Washington

BY DOROTHEA J. LEWIS
(Post-Crescent's Washington Society Editor)

Washington—Being plucked the official start of the social season was on Tuesday. The social season, of course, or circus, or season, whatever you wish to call it.

There was a White House dinner Thursday, final symbol of officialdom, and there were the Cabinet calls the day before. However, busy as the week was there was a great deal more anticipation of the coming winter season.

More Wisconsin senators and more than a majority of the 11 Badger congressmen were in the capital at the beginning of last week, with the last three or four due by the end of the week, pummed for another starting gun near Monday.

Mrs. S. J. Bender of Wausau was in Washington during the week attending the president's conference on home building and home ownership, one of the programs of the American home department of the Wisconsin Federation of Women's Clubs.

Rep. Thomas R. Amle of Elkhorn and his three young sons, Tom, Billy, and Rudy, and Billy, two of the children, in nearby Maryland. It is a family about equal to the size of the city with plenty of room.

Another member of Wisconsin's legislature in Washington added by morning congressmen to Mrs. Miss Nellie Bolten of Wausau. She is just 18 months old and is living with mother and father, Rep. and Mrs. Gerald Bolten, at the Cavalier Apartment.

Miss Rabel Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Davis, formerly of Madison, is expected to leave Europe about the middle of this month. She will spend early in the summer to aid at the American exhibit in the French Colonial Exposition and is now in Vienna with her father. Mr. Davis will probably remain abroad for a longer period.

Miss Davies' sister, Emlen, entertained at supper and dancing during Thanksgiving holidays in honor of her cousin, John D. Stamm of Milwaukee, a student at Columbia University in New York.

James Johnson of Racine, a graduate of American University here, spent Thanksgiving in the city.

Sen. Robert M. La Follette, Jr., spoke in Newark, N. J., Monday evening, returning to Washington the next day.

Paul E. Stark of Madison was in the city during the past week.

A wedding of interest to Wisconsin took place in Washington last Thursday when Miss Katherine Perry of North Carolina became the bride of Gordon Livermore of Hudson, Wis. Mr. and Mrs. Livermore are now honeymooning in New York.

Mrs. James A. Frear of Hudson was one of the guests recently entertained at luncheon by Miss Janet Richards, well-known lecturer on current events, following one of Miss Richards' weekly talks at the Willard hotel. A guest was Countess Zampini Salazar of Italy, a lovely, white-haired woman, friend of five Popes and of Queen Mother Margherita of Italy.

Rep. James A. Frear is one of the patrons of Mrs. Wilson Greene's justly famous concert in Washington. Saturday, Grace Moore of the Metropolitan Opera, who has added so many admirers by her two appearances in motion pictures, was the guest star at a delightful concert.

L. R. McPherson, city attorney of Superior, was in Washington during the week and called at Sen. La Follette's office.

Miss Katherine Lennett of Superior, assistant chief of the children's bureau, attended the state conference of social workers in New Jersey last week.

Captain Joseph Lincoln Smedberg of Madison, U. S. A. retired, was a Washington visitor during the past week.

Douglas Hartman of Watertown, secretary to Rep. George J. Schneider of Appleton, entertained Miss Irene Poste of Boston at the Shoreham Friday night.

Another Pan-Wisconsin wedding took place in Washington recently when Miss Susan Carlson became the bride of Robert Miles Harris of Ontario, Canada. Mr. and Mrs. Harris will make their home in Milwaukee.

There is a new Washington author in Washington. John Paul Carter, a former George Washington University student and now employed in the Y. M. C. A., has just published his first book. It is a collection of short stories and sketches, many of them set in an imaginary Wisconsin town, Appleton, and it is a very normal, wholesome, and cheerful book.

Young Cullen studied at Notre Dame and George Washington Universities and took a Masters of Arts degree in English from G. W. in 1927. Four of the stories in his book were written for a literary class at George Washington. The book is published by the Modern Press in Boston.

He has traveled pretty well all over the country and in Europe. He is now in France during the World war.

Professor and Mrs. Lawrence Joseph Rogers, formerly of Madison, were entertained at dinner in the Sigma Kappa rooms at George Washington University Monday.

W. H. Holt of Ontario was in the city during the week.

URGENT APPOINTMENT OF WOMAN TO ARMS' MEET
Milwaukee—(AP)—Appointment of Justice Florence Allen of the Ohio Supreme court as a delegate to the Geneva Disarmament conference, the Milwaukee branch of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom.

"There is no reason why a woman should not serve at such a conference," said Mrs. Allan J. Roberts, secretary, in commenting on the branch's decision to write to the president.

Mrs. Roberts said the branch also urges greater effort to secure signatures to the peace pact now being presented to the conference.

"The people must make themselves heard," she said. "Unless they do, the militarists may down and the conference will be a failure."

SEVEN SCALES TESTED BY SEALER IN NOVEMBER
Seven scales were tested and justified by Joseph Hoffman, sealer of weights and measures, last month. He also tried out 124 and measures, finding 124 correct and 10 incorrect. He made 50 tests at various stores, meat markets, and similar places of business during the past month, tested 23 and found three correct scales and one wrong scale. He inspected eight counting scales and four weighing scales.

L. R. McPherson, city attorney of Superior, was in Washington during the week and called at Sen. La Follette's office.

Miss Katherine Lennett of Superior, assistant chief of the children's bureau, attended the state conference of social workers in New Jersey last week.

Captain Joseph Lincoln Smedberg of Madison, U. S. A. retired, was a Washington visitor during the past week.

"FULL" WEEK IS SEEN FOR N. Y. STOCK MARKET

Little Activity in Evidence as Week Opens—Await Developments

BY CLAUDE A. JAGGER
Associated Press Financial Editor
New York—(AP)—The stock market opened with a full week's activity in evidence today, while a distinctly better tone developed in bonds.

Markets generally were disposed to await developments. The convening of congress, the meeting of the railway labor chiefs in Chicago, of the reparations advisory committee at Basel, and important dividend meetings, gave promise of a full week.

A fair rally developed during the morning, but was checked around midday by liquidation which was widely regarded in brokerage circles as tax selling. Early advances of 1 to 3 points were largely lost. New York Central sagged 2 points below Saturday's close and Standard of N. Y. more than 1 in fairly active selling. U. S. Steel sold off a point, then recovered partially.

There was better tone in the bond market, particularly in the rails and foreigners.

Selling to establish income tax losses is usually a factor in the stock market at this time and some brokers thought they saw the first of the elusive signs of it today, particularly in the sale of large blocks of Standard of N. Y. dividend uncertainties remain a depressing influence, although some observers feel that expected reductions have already been sufficiently discounted.

New York Central directors are expected to meet Wednesday, and while omission has been rumored, Wall Street is now more inclined to look for a 50-cent quarterly payment, as against $1 previously.

Some of the recent rumors about Europe were still being followed. Adolf Hitler's statement to the Associated Press that his party would seek power through established political means.

TODAY'S MARKETS AT A GLANCE

New York—(AP)—Stocks: Steady leaders recover from tax selling. Bonds: Firm; rails improve. Curb: Steady; market dull. Foreign exchange: Easy; sterling again at new 1931 low.

Cotton: Quiet; awaiting tomorrow's government report.

Sugar: Steady; trade buying.

Coffee: Steady; better Brazilian markets.

Chicago—Wheat: Easy; weak foreign markets; increased offerings from Argentina.

Corn: Easy; poor cash trade; decreased contract deliveries.

Cattle: Steady.

Hogs: Higher.

PRICES IMPROVED ON CHICAGO STOCK MART

Chicago—(AP)—Leading shares showed an improved tone on the Chicago stock exchange today. Trade was moderately active.

Automotive shares, in particular, scored gains. Ford was turned over in considerable quantity at $2 1/2 up, and Bendix made alike advance to 19 1/2.

Insull was likewise in demand and rose to 10 1/2. A gain of 1/2 Edison, on a thin market, dipped 1/2 to 12 1/2.

New York—(AP)—The Wellman Engineering company of Cleveland, Ohio, announced the acquisition by purchase of the claim shell buckles and heavy duty trailer business of the G. H. Williams company, of Erie, Pa., including their good will, patents, patterns, inventions, manufacturing and sales of these buckles and trailers will be immediately transferred to the Wellman plant in Cleveland.

Stockholders of Russia Insurance company will hold a special meeting Dec. 18, to vote on a reduction in capital to $1,500,000 from 3,000,000 and reduction in the par value of the stock to $5 from $10.

Youngstown Sheet and Tube company has advanced prices on all wire products $1 a ton for first quarter, 1932, delivery.

Dividends

New York—(AP)—Directors of Kennecott Copper Corporation today reduced the annual dividend basis to 50 cents from $1 by declaring a quarterly disbursement of 12 1/2 cents a share, payable Jan. 2 to stock of record Dec. 15.

It was the fourth dividend cut by Kennecott during the depression. In July, 1930, the rate was reduced from $5 annually to $2. In the next quarter to $2 and in July of this year to $1.

Sparkis-Washington Co. today emitted the quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share on the common stock due at this time. The regular quarterly dividend of $1 on the preferred stock has been declared for the balance of the fiscal year, which ends June 30, 1932.

Grigsby-Grunow company reports net loss of $1,000,000 in the quarter ended Aug. 31 compared with loss of $1,500,000 in the same period of 1930. Sales totaled $1,000,000, or 1930. Current assets on August 31 were $6,500,000 and current liabilities $1,000,000.

MONEY RATES

New York—(AP)—Call money steady at 23 per cent all day. Time loans steady 60 days 20; 90 days 21; 4-6 months 40 per cent. Prime commercial paper 2 1/2. Bankers acceptances unchanged.

ASK HIGHER PRICES FOR SWINE ON MART

Demand Made in Spite of 65,000 Head Shipment Received in Chicago

Chicago—(AP)—Recovering their grip, salesmen demanded 25c higher prices for hogs in spite of the fact that 65,000 arrived here today. While the supply was only 5,000 lighter than a week ago, the bulk, 45,000, went to packers on direct consignment, leaving only 17,000 on sale in the open market. This was scarce enough to supply eastern shipping demand and prices were 10-15c higher than Friday's average. The higher asking prices slowed the market down, but $12.50-14.00 was obtainable for choice 200-420 lb butchers. Falling far below last Monday's volume of marketings, cattle offerings met with a better market to day. Aggregate supplies in twelve leading centers dropped off 25,000 head of the decrease as accounted for in the last days when only 17,000 were checked in. Offerings of equality were heavier, in between short fed steers and the stock again making up 90 per cent of the run.

Live mutton receipts of 55,000 were regarded as ample for trade requirements but demand gave evidence of broadening and holders asked better prices. Packers reported 2,700 lambs received early in the day on direct billings and more were expected on later trains.

EXPERT EXPLAINS SETUP OF FIRM'S BALANCE SHEETS

Serves as Analysis of Company's Status—Lists Assets, Liabilities

BY GEORGE T. HUGHES
Copyright, 1931, by Cons. Press

In our study of balance sheets we have now reached the point where the statement of an actual company can be taken for analysis. Here is the setup at the end of its last fiscal year of a corporation dealing with the farmer and reporting in its last income account an operating deficit after depreciation, the figures being given in round numbers and the statement being slightly condensed.

Land, Buildings, etc. $15,500,000
Investments in affiliated companies 475,000
Miscellaneous Investments 600,000
Prepayments 150,000
Total Assets $17,525,000

Current Assets
Receivables $4,000,000
Inventories 3,500,000
Cash 1,000,000
Total Current Assets $8,500,000

Liabilities
Prior Preference Stock $10,000,000
Participating Preferred Stock 1,000,000
Common Stock 1,500,000
Reserves 344,999
Total Liabilities $12,844,999

Current Liabilities
Accounts Payable $250,000
Total Liabilities $13,094,999

Look first at the enormously strong financial position. All current liabilities are only $130,000 against which there is cash alone of $1,000,000. Now note that capital liabilities consist of stock only. A company in that condition does not go bankrupt no matter how unfavorable its current business. The first capital liability is the prior preference stock of which there are outstanding 100,000 shares. If we subtract from the cash the accounts payable we will have a remainder of over $60 a share for this prior preference stock.

In other words this particular corporation could wipe out all its debts, write off all its receivables as uncollectible, destroy its inventories, pay all its bills, and yet have something left over for the stockholders.

CULBERTSON on CONTRACT

by Ely Culbertson

A SLIP AND A SLAM

Lapsus Linguae, or in the vernacular "a slip of the tongue," is the responsible for many odd happenings in the relations between human beings. Recently, I was told of a Grand Slam bid by reason of a slip of the tongue and the making of three finesse and the shortening of the long trump hand twice in order to establish the coup position.

South—dealer.
North and South vulnerable.
East and West not vulnerable.

♦ A J 9
♣ A Q 9 6

♠ Q 7 3 2
♥ 9 7 3

When West passed South's opening bid of one spade, North, who had an extremely strong hand, one that appeared pretty big enough to guarantee a slam in some declarations, merely reviewed the possibilities. It, he thought, "South's spade suit is solid save for the King which I hold, then a slam should be made in spades." North was a true made in spades suit, and then he considered the possibilities of a bid in notrump, but there was no possibility of making a force in notrump. Meanwhile East imperceptibly turned to North and said, "Did you bid?"

North's trend of thought was interrupted. "Seven spades" was the immediate answer, and East, passed, confident that the contract would prove difficult through his length in spades. South and West also passed, and, when West opened the diamond, South, taking stock of his resources, saw that he faced a well-nigh impossible contract.

The diamond trick was taken with the Ace. South, playing on it, his King in order to retain two diamond entries in the North hand if they should later prove to be of value. The King of Spades was then led and when West's knave fell, South decided to finesse. The finesse was almost obligatory at this point, but because South held only eight spades in the combined hands and for the further reason that West, if he held Queen-Knave alone, would be quite likely to false-card by playing the Queen. The finesse held and South saw that to make the contract he must find the King of clubs and the King-Knave of hearts in the West hand, and that East must hold at least three cards in each of these suits. He now led his Singleton club and finessed the Queen, which, of course, held. A small club was led and trumped in the closed hand. South thus got rid of one of his two surplus trumps. He must dispose of another before leading from the Dummy hand on the eleventh round of play. He now led the heart four and finessed the Ten. This finesse also held. The Ace of clubs was then played and on this South discarded the Queen of diamonds. The last club was then led from the Dummy and trumped in the closed hand. "The coup position had now been established. South now led his last heart and took the Queen finesse. On the Ace of Hearts he discarded another diamond in the closed hand. Now the Ace of diamonds was led and when East followed suit, South broke up a sign of relief. The coup position had been established and East's Queen and seven were worthless for trick-taking purposes against South's Ace and Ten.

"What on earth made you bid seven, partner?" South asked as the score was potted down. "I was considering the possibilities of the hand and East's question registered just as I was reviewing the chances of a spade Slam. It was a pure slip of the tongue," North replied.

"A fortunate slip," snorted West as he jotted down the bonus for a vulnerable Grand Slam.

MOUSE EATS RATTLES FROM SNAKES; LIONS HAD BETTER BEWARE

Chicago — P. Now that Mickey Mouse is loose, maybe special guards for the lions in the Lincoln park zoo will be necessary. Mickey is the name attendant of the Chicago Academy of Science gave the mouse, which was placed in a cage with three rattlesnakes on the theory it would be promptly gobbled up to appease the apparent hunger of the reptiles.

But no such thing happened, for Mickey apparently is something of a diplomat. He made friends with the rattlers, and for several days the attendants pointed out to visitors what a happy little family it was.

Yesterday, however, Mickey was banished from the cage when it was discovered he had nibbled the rattles off two of the snakes. Mickey was lifted by the scruff of the neck and liberated outside of the museum. Not far away are the lions.

EXPERT EXPLAINS WAY TO COMPARE BALANCE SHEETS

Comparison Can Only Be Made Between Firms in Same Business

BY GEORGE T. HUGHES
(Copyright, 1931, by Cons. Press)

New York — In using balance sheets for the comparative analysis of securities no correct conclusion can be reached unless the comparison is between corporations engaged in the same line of trade. For example, railroads and public utilities do not require as large working capital as the average industrial organization. An electric light and power company receives payment for the service it sells at short intervals. A motor manufacturer, compelled to incur large expense in production before payment is received for the finished product from the dealer, needs large cash resources. A corporation engaged in a seasonal business such as sugar production requires large liquid capital.

Something of the same distinction can be made in the case of funded indebtedness. Railways and utilities generally have large bond issues whereas many industrials are able to finance almost entirely by stock in setting one off against another, therefore, it is essential that only companies with capable fields of activity be used. In these times of trade depression, decreasing earnings and reduced dividends, the investor desirous of selecting the best opportunity for the longer period in any one line should look to the balance sheets of the companies operating in that line and not require that a railroad or a utility should meet the same standard as an industrial.

When the depression passes and business revives, as eventually it surely will, the corporation in the strongest financial position almost certainly will be first to recover earning power. If there are two industrials, for instance, one with a complex and the other with a simple capital structure, one with adequate working capital and the other with an impaired financial position, it will be the former that will be the first to reward its shareholders. It is true that revival is always irregular, early in one trade and late in another, but as between corporations in the same trade the balance sheet position during the depression is as good a forecast as any of what is likely to happen when prosperity returns.

CHEMIST FINDS DOPE

IN MANY COUGH SYRUPS!

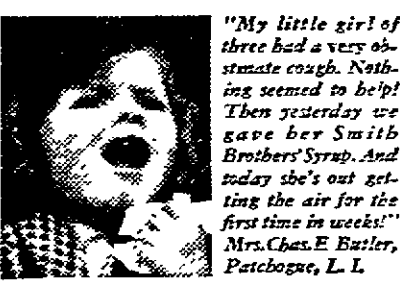

DOPE? Yes—dope! Opium. Ether. Chloroform. Morphine. Many old-fashioned cough syrups rely on these for their results.

But—why take chances? Why risk these drugs? Why fool around with dope—particularly with CHILDREN'S coughs?

Smith Brothers' Triple Action Cough Syrup contains NO DOPE. Not a trace of it! It doesn't have to rely on dope. Its "Triple Action" (a scientifically approved principle) stops even a stubborn cough quickly and SAFELY. "Triple Action" does three things: (1) soothes the throat, (2) loosens phlegm, (3) clears air passages.

Smith Brothers' has no bitter dope taste! Children actually like to take it! Only 35c.
